PINCHOT URGES U. S. JOB LOAN

Today

Judge Hopkins, of Kansas.
American Ships.
Our New Crimes.
Why Not Montauk?

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

CHIEF JUSTICE HUGHES who has the final say sent to New York Federal Judge Richard J. Hopkins of Kansas who saw interesting things in New York as he told Mr. Ewing of the New Orleans States. Prof. Goldmark of Columbia, and others at luncheon yesterday.

Judge Hopkins surprised and grieved Mr. "Legs" Diamond by proving that federal judges mean business.

He sent Mr. Diamond to prison for four years, fined him $11,000, and informed the District Attorney that he would give him evidence with enough in it to send Mr. Diamond and others to jail for 30 or 40 years more.

Those who believe that the law should be above bootleggers will be much obliged to Kansas for sending Judge Hopkins and prohibitionists will recall with satisfaction that the judge is a regular Kansas prohibitionist.

JUDGE HOPKINS was interested in the idea with which a powerful Negro decided to meet the depression. Masquerading as a government agent, he preyed on drug peddlers saving, ingeniously: "I don't want to turn you boys in, but after all, I have got to live the same as you."

Appropriate to the bootlegging business are Swift's lines:

"So, naturalists observe, a flea
Has smaller fleas that on him prey;
"And these have smaller still to bite 'em;
And so proceed ad infinitum."

The speakeasy preys on the public, the bootlegger on the speakeasy man, the hijacker on the bootlegger, the real or pretended enforcement agent preys on them all.

Judge Hopkins was interested, too, in the fact that a man indicted on eight serious counts was let off with mild punishment based on one count because he had nine children and his wife was due to have another. She proved it by having it the next day, and the jury was merciful.

It seemed to ask:

"If a man with nine children and another coming can't bootleg, who can?"

THE SHIPPING Board about to sell some big ships, including the giant Leviathan, will make sure that American ships will continue to be owned by Americans and operated to create a commercial marine for the United States.

Fortunately the principal bidders are the Dollar Line and Herbert Fleishhacker, on the Pacific Coast, Kermit Roosevelt, son of the late President Roosevelt, and Vincent Astor, Mr. Bruce of Baltimore, a brother of Secretary Mellon's son-in-law, and others on the East Coast.

BOTH THESE groups are entirely American. Rumors to the contrary notwithstanding, there is no British or other foreign ownership or control in either of the groups.

The question is which will give and guarantee the best price. And it is hoped that consideration will be given by Mr. O'Connor of the shipping board and by the administration to any representations as to plans for CHEAP TRANSPORTATION for American travelers, particularly for American public school teachers.

OUR CRIMES become ever more "interesting."

Two young girls, 15 and 17 years old, with two boys, victims of "petting party bandits," are killed, their bodies thrown into their car and the gasoline set on fire.

IN NEW YORK a boy 12 years old lurches through the door of a speakeasy, very drunk. Police take care of him, and next day the same boy is found, again drunk, carrying a bottle of gin.

With all respect for sincere prohibitionists, you remember that you did not read these things in the daily newspapers when we were still cursed with the demon rum" before prohibition came to put an end to "alcoholic abuses."

CONGRESSMAN BRITTEN is criticised for sending the Navy to Montauk, at the far end of Long Island, instead of sending the officers, as usual to parade around Newport. Montauk is more interesting than Newport and will be a thousand times more important when it becomes the last jumping off place for airships bound for Europe and the landing place on the way back.

Officers and soldiers will learn more about America, and make better real estate investments going ashore on Montauk than they possibly could do at Newport.

The officers will be missed at fashionable Newport dances, but that isn't important.

POOR OLD WALL Street cheers up so readily and sags down so easily. Gay on Tuesday, the Street was sad yesterday. Big Steel slumped below 48. But world conditions are getting better, although the surface doesn't show it.

One important thing has happened. The nations have learned what is the matter with them. TOO MUCH WAR. They know what a bad attack they have, and are taking it seriously.

TO ESTABLISH a new flying record in the United States is rather discouraging with Capt. Frank Hawks around. When you make a record, he comes along and breaks it.

Yesterday he flew from New York to Chicago in four hours and four minutes, breaking the record by 13 minutes. Leaving New York in a drizzling rain, heavy clouds and a "low ceil-

CONSULATES GUARDED HERE

Police Move to Prevent Further Bombings; No Clue To Italian Office Blast

City detectives and police today were detailed to guard all consulates in Pittsburgh, following a request by the Polish consul, 249 North Craig street, for protection against a possible repetition of yesterday's bombing of the Italian consulate, a block distant.

Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh said he had assigned detectives to guard the Polish consul's home day and night, although none had arrived this afternoon. He also directed that patrolmen and cruising cars keep watch on other consulates, especially in early morning hours.

THREATS NOT MADE

A. M. Ocetkiewicz, Polish consul in explanation of his request, said:

"I have received no threats. Whenever an incident like that of yesterday occurs, it is simply a routine duty of the consul to ask police action."

Members of the bomb and arson squad continued their investigation of the bombing of the Italian consulate, at 514 North Neville street, early yesterday, which wrecked the front of the home and office of Dr. Giovanni Giurato, consul here for three years.

Members of the squad were to question Dr. Giurato again today as to possible enemies who may have been responsible.

An Associated Press dispatch from Washington says Gov. Pinchot was requested by Acting Secretary of State Castle to forward him a report of the bombing to be turned over to Ambassador Di Martino, of Italy. Without waiting a formal report, Mr. Castle today expressed his "regrets" over the incident to Ambassador Di Martino.

'REGRETS' SUFFICIENT

After the conference with Castle, the ambassador said no formal apology would be asked and indicated the expression of the American government's "regrets" would be satisfactory.

Department of Justice agents today denied they were probing the bombing, despite dispatches from Washington that an investigation had been ordered by federal authorities at the request of the Italian ambassador. The order has not yet been received, it was stated at the office here.

Dr. Giurato, 36, former Italian army officer, was at a loss to account for the blast. There are no anti-Fascist organizations in this district, he said.

Police incline to the view that those opposed to the Mussolini regime were responsible.

TORCH MURDER SOLUTION CLAIMED

Two Arrested, Admit Owning Slaying Gun; Police Searching for Third Man

International News Service.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Aug. 13.—Prosecutor Harry S. Toy declared this afternoon that the sordid Washtenaw County "torch" murders had been solved with the arrest of a giant Negro and a 23 year old ex convict. A third man, known as "Curley," is being sought, Toy said.

"With the arrest of Curley, I am confident that the slayers will be behind bars."

The prosecutor stated officials that he had obtained a confession from the men that they were joint owners of the 38 caliber revolver used to kill one of the high school boys in the maniac massacre of the four youngsters. Thomas Wheatley, 16, Harry Lore, 16, Vivian Gold, 15, and Anna May Harrison, 17.

TWO PRISONERS

Those taken into custody are Nathan Blackstone, the Negro, and Fred Smith, paroled convict from the Ionia state reformatory.

Grilled separately, both Blackstone and Smith admitted, according to Toy, that they had been together in Milan, Mich., on the day the two high school boys and their pretty girl companions were brutally beaten to death and

Mrs. Edna Edwards testified Mrs. Hopkins was shot when a gun in Kennedy's hands exploded. Kennedy is free under $2,500 bond.

Pennsylvania Governor Warns Of Growing Lawlessness, Sees Greater Suffering

International News Service.

DETROIT, Aug. 13.—Gov. Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, addressing the Mayor's unemployment committee here today declared the federal government was the only power great enough to meet the unemployment situation this winter.

Gov. Pinchot asserted:

"If we can declare a moratorium to help Germany, if we can recommend a loan of a billion two hundred million dollars for Germany, what is there wrong in a federal loan to feed the needy in America?"

He began his address by stating that what he had to say was not to be interpreted as a bid for the Republican presidential nomination, adding:

"It is nothing of the sort. This nation has come to a pretty pass if a man cannot say what needs to be said in the public interest without being charged with political intention."

POINTS TO NEEDS

The Governor discussed various remedies for depression, insisting that the "fundamental remedy" lay in national planning—to substitute planned and orderly development of resources, production, and institutions for the haphazard and unbalanced growth which has led to depression.

He said that private charity should carry a heavier load of relief. Public works, he said, offers but a partial solution, since many states lack funds to finance such activities. Constitutional provisions prevent many states from appropriating money to relieve private distress, he said, and many cities are at the limit of taxation and many unable to borrow fur-

POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, Aug. 13. Threatening clouds again hung over the Polo Grounds as the Pirates and the Giants fought it out in the first game of their second straight doubleheader. The doubtful weather held back the fans and about 7,000 were out for the first game.

Ervin Brame and Fred Fitzsimmons were on the mound in the first battle.

Howard Groskloss was not in uniform. His right leg is badly swollen but he will receive daily treatment.

Bill Hinchman, one of the Pirate scouts, was in the Pittsburgh camp today. Bill will leave in a day or two on another extensive scouting trip.

HOOVER LAUDS BUILDING LOAN SOCIETIES

Pioneers in Moulding Vital Economic Characteristic, Note to Convention Says

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 13 (AP).—President Hoover, in a message to the United States Building and Loan League and the International Congress of Building Societies and Building and Loan Associations, in convention here, today paid tribute to the [illegible] of the home-ownership plan. He said:

"The men who have shaped the building and loan plan have been pioneers in moulding a most important economic characteristic of new world civilization."

The message was read by W. O. Woods, Treasurer of the United States. The President added:

"The centennial convention of the building societies is an occasion of unusual historical and business significance. It marks a century of co-operative finance and individual self-help for home ownership initiated in this country in the village of Frankford, Pa., in 1831. Helping to finance the building of over 8,000,000 American homes in the intervening century is an achievement of financial importance, but of even more significant social implications.

"Home owning is more than the provision of domiciles. It goes to the roots of family life, public morals and standards of living. The men who have shaped the building and loan plan have been pioneers in moulding a most important economic characteristic of new world civilization.

"The savings accumulated by some 12,000,000 of investors in membership in building and loan associations in this country have acted as a stabilizing force and have illustrated the self-reliance of our citizenry."

HOLDUP VICTIM ROUTS TWO GIRLS, BANDIT COMPANIONS

INSURANCE MAN FORCES FOUR TO FLEE

Woman Held Up Along Howe Street, Turns Over $4 to Robber; Driver Loses $6

Two girls and two men in an automobile who last night tried to hold up and rob W. A. Maguire, an insurance adjuster with offices in the Jones Law Building, in front of 165 Dithridge street, escaped from their intended victim when he decided not to be robbed and put them to flight.

Police in all sections of the city started a hunt for the car after Maguire reported the affair to the Oakland station. He gave police a hammer, a jack-handle and a woman's coat belt which the bandits dropped in their flight. Police said they knew the number of the bandit car license.

WOMAN HELD UP

Held up by an armed man at Kentucky avenue and Bellefonte street last night, Sue Campbell, of 5432 Howe street, was robbed of $4 according to a report to Squirrel Hill police.

The victim was on her way home when the man stepped from behind a pole and confronted her with a revolver. She furnished police with a description of the robber.

Two Negroes held up Joseph Trimski, of 2418 Jane street, a Green cab driver, at Wylie avenue and Walton street, and robbed him of $6 last night. The Negroes engaged the cab in the downtown district and pointed revolvers at the driver upon reaching their destination.

PURSE STOLEN

Two Negro women walked into the Virginia Dare Dress Shop, at 207 Sixth street, looked over some dresses and then left late yesterday. A few minutes later, Mary E. Mahatma Gandhi's son, Devidas Gandhi, said as he left the meeting of the Congress working committee:

"There is absolutely no chance that my father will go to London."

The committee's decision to have no part in the conference was based upon charges of repeated serious breaches of the Delhi pact by the provincial government.

CURRAN RACKET ROW CITED AT INQUEST

Girl Aide Tells of Dispute Over 'Sugar, Yeast Union;' Jury Holds Killer Unknown

A "sugar and yeast union" selling chiefly to beer racketeers, was brought into the coroner's inquest today into the death of Morris Curran, who was shot and killed as he left his new home at 2922 Perrysville avenue, June 24.

Members of that "union," of which Curran was said to be one, were the only persons with whom he had quarrelled, it was testified by his secretary, Gladys Uren, of 2605 Linwood avenue.

The jury made the usual finding for racket cases that Curran had been "slain by a person or persons unknown."

Miss Uren, telling of the sugar and yeast union quarrel, said:

"There was a sugar and yeast 'union' and they formed an organization.

"I think it was called the Keystone Company. It was of dealers that sold sugar and yeast in cars—I think it was in cars—and they were Benny Goldberg, Louis Epstein, Capith S. Caseda, Certo—I think his name was Joseph Certo—Mike Davis, Abe Kershabaum, J. Disnoff and Curran.

"I think Weston Flowers, of Charleroi, was in, too.

"I can't think of all the others but there were others."

She did not reveal what argument Curran had had with other members, but said they quarrelled frequently over price fixing.

The ire of Coroner W. J. McGregor was aroused by the revelation that notaries public issue automobile license plates without checking the address of the licensee.

Police testified that the license of the murder car had been issued to Frank Millon at a Fisk street address. Millon was not known there, they said.

Alex Herman, a notary public of 3006 Bexley avenue, testified that he had taken the application for the license and had not investigated the address. Herman said such investigation is not customary.

REBELS OFFER TO QUIT, CUBAN REGIME SAYS

Reports Filtering Through Censorship, However, Show Insurgents Fighting On

International News Service.

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 13.—Prominent leaders of the Cuban rebellion under ex-President Gen. Mario G. Menocal have offered to surrender, it was claimed in an official communique issued from the presidential palace today.

The purpose of President Gerardo Machado's trip into the provinces, the communique declared, is to discuss peace terms with the insurrectionists.

At the time the communique was issued however news filtering through the government censorship from outlying provinces indicated that the rebellion was still in progress with the rebel forces showing no definite disposition to capitulate in spite of heavy losses the federals claimed to have inflicted upon them.

President Machado was bound for Santa Clara, scene of the most recent fighting, the communique said. He departed in his private car "Yosemite," guarded by 40 picked troops.

IRISH 'REBELS' FLEE TO HILLS

DUBLIN, IRISH FREE STATE, Aug. 13—(INS.)—Republican opponents of the Free State who entrenched themselves at Cootehill, County Cavan, yesterday and held off civic guards under the command of Gen. O'Duffy fled to the surrounding hills today.

Gen. O'Duffy sent patrols in armored cars to search for the ringleaders of the "uprising."

Apprehension lest other such offenses happen Free State officials considered today offering to the Dail a bill establishing a special tribunal empowered to deal with treasonable offenses and even to inflict capital punishment. Ordinary juries, afraid of reprisals, generally refuse to return a verdict of guilty in political cases.

Cootehill was quiet today, but civic guards continued to patrol the streets, while city officials cleared away the debris by the "revolution." Orangemen residing at Cootehill returned to their homes.

WILKINS' SUB SPEEDS NORTH

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS

Commander of the Wilkins-Ellsworth Trans-Arctic Submarine Expedition. (By radio via American Radio News Corporation and Radiomarine Corporation.)

ABOARD SUBMARINE NAUTILUS, En Route to Spitzbergen, Aug. 13.—Bucking a westerly breeze that drove the crew below for shelter, the Nautilus made a good run yesterday. By 7 p. m. we had covered 63 more miles of our voyage to Spitzbergen, from where the Nautilus will cruise at sea in Arctic waters.

We left Skjervoey, Norway, at 7 a. m., after making some slight repairs, and dropping the pilot who has been with us since the Nautilus left Bergen. With one engine running, we headed into a clear sea under calm and sunny skies. The day was agreeable and warm.

Several delays to adjust valves, the engine, and the air compressors occurred during the day. We hope the engine will soon be in order.

Our men have not yet donned the thick, Arctic clothing they will wear later on. As yet we have sighted no floating ice and the seas ahead seem clear.

Plans Refuel Hop To Tokio and Back

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Capt. Roy W. Ammel, Chicago stockbroker and aviation enthusiast, has announced a plan to make a round trip non-stop refueling flight to Tokio from Los Angeles. The date is not definite.

If the flight is successful, Ammel said he would attempt to girdle the globe without landing, refueling planes being used en route to replenish the tanks of

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Two bids for the United States Lines were received today by the United States Shipping Board.

12-Year-Old Boy Kills Brother, 8

MATTESON, Ill., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—A 12-year-old boy, William Carl, shot and killed his 8-year-old brother, Darrel, yesterday while playing with a rifle he had been forbidden to touch. William fled to nearby fields. His mother asked police to make no search for him as he might leave home forever. She said his older brother would bring him back.

JAPAN TO FREE WORLD FLIERS

TOKIO, Aug. 13.—(INS.)—Court action against Hugh Herndon, Jr., and Clyde Pangborn, American round-the-world fliers, for photographing fortified areas in their flight from Siberia to Tokio, will be dropped by the Japanese authorities, International News Service learned form a reliable source today.

It was expected the airmen would be required to pay a nominal fine for their violation of the country's strict regulations regarding espionage.

Honduran Flier Relates Daring Landing, Rescue In Storm-Tossed Sea

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Swathed in bandages and weak from exhaustion, Capt. Lisandro Garay, of the Honduran army air corps, was brought to Savannah today after clinging for 35 hours to the tail of his wrecked plane in a choppy sea 16 miles off Cape Lookout, N. C.

With him aboard the American Brazil Line steamer Biboco, which rescued him at 10:30 a. m. last Tuesday, came the wrecked monoplane in which he left New York last Sunday afternoon on an attempted nonstop flight to Honduras.

Garay told a dramatic story of his unsuccessful flight, forced descent into the sea and his rescue. He said:

"I left New York about 5 o'clock in the afternoon (Sunday) for a nonstop solo flight to Tegucigalpa, Honduras. Passing Wilmington, N. C., winds became so strong I had to try different levels to see if I could avoid bad weather. I soon realized the speed I was getting out of the plane was not sufficient to enable me to reach my goal.

"I kept my head and, by the cities passed on the coast, I was able to know my position. I knew what I was doing and I prepared my ship for an ocean landing.

"After landing I found I could not get the door open and I had to break a window in the plane. The wind was blowing 50 miles an hour and, as I broke the window, fragments of glass were blown into the cabin, cutting my face and hands."

NOME RAIN, FOG HOLD LINDYS

A heavy rainfall, wind and fog threatened to keep them at Nome until late this afternoon or tomorrow. When the weather permits they will hop off on the perilous flight to Karagin Island, near the coast of the Kamchatka Peninsula, more than 1,000 miles away.

On this trip, all of it over the storm-afflicted Behring Sea, the outside world will have to rely on Mrs. Lindbergh for radioed news of the fliers' progress.

Since they arrived here Tuesday night, Lindy and Anne have been the center of interest in Nome. Their presence has created excitement excelled only by the gold rush of 1900.

Hope Entertained For Guardsman Hurt

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(INS.)—Some hope for the recovery of John K. Bauer, of Harrisburg, a member of the Pennsylvania National Guard, was held out today at Walter Reed Hospital. Bauer, thrown from a horse at Harrisburg yesterday, broke his back and was rushed here in an Army airplane ambulance.

Shoeing of Horse Draws Throng In Street

The sight of a blacksmith shoeing a horse in the middle of an East Liberty street was so unusual to the work-bound residents of that community that it attracted a large gallery yesterday.

Many persons saw a horse fall and lose its shoe in Highland avenue between Penn avenue and Baum boulevard. The driver made a phone call and in a few moments a large sedan drew up alongside the halted wagon. Out stepped the smith, wearing the leather apron.

While the crowd gathered the smith went to work and attached a new shoe.

DANCING FLOOR FALLS, 20 HURT

TREYNOR, Iowa, Aug. 13—(AP.)—More than 20 persons were injured late last night when the floor of a second-story dance hall collapsed, plunging 50 persons into a garage below.

As Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Miller, newlyweds, took the floor to dance the first dance, the crowd was pressed back into one corner of the floor.

The floor started to sag. Then with a crash, 25 feet of the floor gave way, dropping men and women into the garage below.

DREAM KILLING STORY DENIED

KINGWOOD, W. Va., August 13. Denial was made by authorities today that Mrs. Evelyn Harader, 42, wife of a Uniontown newspaper employe, had made a statement in which she attributed the killing of Cecil Michael, Clifton Mills, W. Va., postmaster and garage owner, to a dream.

Mrs. Harader has made no statement of any kind, according to Melvin C. Snyder, Preston county prosecutor. A few hours after the killing on July 25, the woman confessed, Snyder said, that she had shot Michael after a sleepless night. Believed insane, she was visited by a sanity commission and committed to an asylum at Weston, W. Va., for observation.

2 Bandits Sought In Store Holdup

BEAVER, Pa., Aug. 13.—State police and county detectives are searching for two armed bandits who yesterday held up the store and gasoline station of C. D. Leech, near Bocktown.

Leech reported two men, driving a roadster, entered his store, held up him and his brother, John S. Leech, Florida, a guest, and bound them with ropes. The men then looted the cash drawer of $15 and took about $50 from the pockets of the two brothers.

Canadian Mounties Sent to Far North

NORTH SYDNEY, N. S.—(INS.)—In their way to the Northland to maintain law and order and the prestige of the flag, four members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police have passed through here bound for the Canadian Arctic. Constable R. W. Hamilton, one of the four, is en route to Ellsmere Island, Canada's farthest north. The island contains 24,000 square miles, and according to Constable Hamilton no white people are allowed on the island as yet.

Clark Defense Opens In Murder Trial

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 13.—(INS.)—Counsel for David H. Clark, former deputy prosecutor, today were to start their direct fight to prove he is not the murderer of Herbert Spencer, political writer.

First defense witnesses were to be placed on the stand. Clark will probably testify in his own defense. The state closed its case yesterday without attempting to explain the motive behind the killings of Spencer and of Charles Crawford, political leader.

Dill Blames Tariff For Ills of World

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Senator C. C. Dill (Dem.), of Washington, believes the Hawley-Smoot tariff law "helped spread our depression to all parts of the world."

Answering a challenge of Senator Herbert, of Rhode Island, to "explain precisely what you believe to be wrong" with the tariff, Senator Dill last night declared only a downward revision of the tariff would "re-establish confidence all over the world."

Princesses' Pajamas Startle Irish Town

PORTAFERRY, Northern Ireland, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Two pair of flannel yachting trousers have had the townsfolk gaping and gossiping. The furore caused no little embarrassment to the Spanish princesses, Beatrice and Marie Christine. They were wearing the trousers when they landed here while on a cruise.

KLINE SLATE INDORSED

The Republican Executive Committee of the Twenty-first Ward, with Chairman J. D. Hough campaign chairman for the ward and indorsed Kline candidates. They are: Coyne for commissioner; Controller James P. Kerr to succeed himself and four candidates for Council: John M. Phillips and R. J. Alexander, incumbents; Traffic Court Magistrate William J. Scott and Representative James F. Rooney of the North Side.

Mutual friends of Armstrong and State Senator William D. Mansfield, county commissioner candidate, are still hopeful that an Armstrong-Mansfield combination can be worked out.

Next Monday, the last day on which a candidate can withdraw, may witness the exit of a number of aspirants who were put in the race by overzealous friends.

PHILLIPS SEEKS O'NEIL IN RACE TO KEEP SEAT FOR TREASURER

Mr. Phillips

Mr. O'Neil

I accepted an election to the Council of the City of Pittsburgh to fill the vacancy caused by the death of my friend, George J. Kambach, with the thought that I should serve only for the remainder of his term.

"However, so many of my friends have insisted upon my being a candidate for an elective term and so many people have signed petitions requesting that my name be placed on the ballots that I cannot be ungracious enough to refuse them."

"My work in the Tax Revision office has kept me in touch with the duties of this important office.

"I acquired from my father, the late J. Dennis O'Neil, certain ideas as to the manner in which he thought public offices should be administered.

"If it is my good fortune to be selected by the Republican voters, I assure you it will be my earnest endeavor to give a faithful and just public service."

INDEPENDENTS LAUNCH FULL TICKET

BAKE ADDS TO GRAY

Ba[illegible] pa[illegible] [illegible] pa[illegible] Pa[illegible] A Ma[illegible]

The newspapers and the people have demanded an Independent Republican ticket free from machine domination. The demand has been met by volunteers and men drafted from the ranks to answer the call.

McGovern heads the ticket for County Commissioner. I am truly proud of his record. In a short time I am convinced that he will be teamed with a running mate who will be just as capable and dependable as Col. McGovern.

"Assistant Attorney General Smith will bring to the office of the District Attorney an experience such as few men his age can claim. His record demonstrates his fitness. His induction into office will be deathblow for those who are defying law and order.

"A County Controller who will earnestly and fearlessly control expenditures is badly needed. Maj. William J. Rees, an experienced, quiet, courageous man, former Deputy Controller, has been drafted to make the fight.

TRANTER PRAISED

"Henry Tranter, of the Tranter Manufacturing Company and active member of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce and many civic organizations, who stands high as a business man and banker, was induced to run for County Treasurer. It was urged that not only the county's tax money should be properly handled, but that tax receipts about which so much scandal has been attached, should have the closest supervision in the coming Mayoralty fight.

"The offices of Clerk of Courts, Prothonotary and the Register of Wills have been conducted efficiently for years by S. J. Topley, John Vogt and Joseph N. Mackrell, respectively, and each has been indorsed on their records by the Independent Republican Organization.

"For Recorder of Deeds, Capt. James O. Corbett, of the Fifteenth Engineers, A. E. F., was selected. He has pledged a revision of the present antiquated system used in this office that will save the county at least $200,000 a year.

"The voters of the city of Pittsburgh are to be congratulated on the four Independent Republican candidates for council.

COUNCIL CANDIDATES

"Robert Garland, fearless, with an enviable record of service; P. J. McArdle, who believes that 'a public office is still a public trust' is like Garland and Anderson, respected for their high standards of honesty and courage. Charles Anderson's record in Council is the people's assurance of a Councilman uncontrolled. John D. Houston, one of Pittsburgh's outstanding business men, was persuaded to run for council as a duty. His personal courage carried the battle to the entrenched political power of Pittsburgh. The purchase of supplies investigation resulted in indictments of the Mayor and a former cabinet officer.

'UNBOSSED MEN'

"These are the uncontrolled, unbossed men demanded to lead the fight for a betterment of civic conditions. They can win the fight only if the citizenship actively engages in the battle.

"The Independent Republican candidates have pledged themselves, without reservations, when nominated and elected, to clean up the criminal mess in which the taxpayers find themselves due to waste, incapacity, incompetency, indifference, crime, graft, racketeering and ring rule."

RAPS POLITICAL TRIAL CUSTOM

Alexander P. Lindsay, Republican candidate for judge of Common Pleas Court, stressed at a meeting yesterday in the headquarters the importance of an unbiased tribunal before which cases having a political aftermath are to be tried, he said.

"It has been the habit to assign judges from other judicial districts for the trial of cases having a political complexion. That should not be necessary. Men of sufficient courage and of sufficient freedom from political influence should be elected by the people to try any case within the jurisdiction of their court.

"No man should be elevated to the bench whose judgment is in any way warped or biased by any previous condition of political servitude."

Park, Smith To Speak Tonight

Members of the North End Community Association, a non-political group, will hear two rivals for the office of District Attorney speak at a meeting in the clubroom of the Mt. Zion Lutheran Church tonight. They are District Attorney Park and Ralph H. Smith, deputy state attorney.

Park is a member of the association. When it was announced that he would be a speaker, friends of Smith asked that the latter be invited to speak. The request was granted. John Wray, Council president of the association, who will preside at the meeting, said that Park had requested that he be the last speaker. Neither candidate has announced his subject.

3 Reported Drowned In Cloudburst

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Three persons were reported drowned yesterday when terrific rains filled the Tehachapi and Monolith valleys with swirling floods, damaged railroad tracks and two large factories, and forced workmen to flee for their lives.

Reports gathered by the Southern Pacific Railroad offices here said the utter confusion following the cloudburst made it impossible to learn the definite toll.

BRYAN FOES AID INDEPENDENTS

Support of the entire independent slate of county candidates led by County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, seeking re-election, and Deputy State Attorney Ralph H. Smith, candidate for District Attorney, was announced by the Citizens Committee of McKees Rocks, the independent group opposing the regime of Miles Bryan, Republican borough chief, last night.

The Citizens Committee put in its entire independent slate of borough candidates to oppose those of the McKees Rocks political machine, basing their campaign on high tax rates, lack of borough improvements and near-bankrupt condition of borough finances. Their campaign has been marked by charges of graft and corruption in borough affairs and appeals to the electorate to end "Miles Bryanism" in the borough.

Support of Attorneys Alexander Lindsay and H. H. Negley, candidates for the Common Pleas bench, was also announced by the committee.

Candidate for Judge Names Assistants

Attorney N. L. Wymard, candidate for the Republican nomination for one of the four judges of County Court, to be elected this fall, has announced a committee of lawyers to act in an advisory capacity for his campaign. The members:

David L. Waldron, of Wilkinsburg; J. Paul Farrell, of McKeesport; James M. McIntyre, of Knoxville; Thirtieth Ward: Thomas G. Bodkin, of Dormont; Harry C. Ploeger, of South Side; Andrew E. Sheridan, of Crafton; Michael W. Huron, of South Side, and James H. Brennan, of Edgewood.

Defunct Bank Mails Dividend Checks

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 13.—Checks for the initial dividend of 7 per cent, amounting to $175,000, were mailed today to depositors of the closed Title and Trust Company of Western Pennsylvania by Special Deputy Frank W. Jackson, of the State Banking Department, in charge of liquidation of the bank.

Candidates Draw Ballot Places

The Republican organization candidates fared badly in the drawing for positions on the September primary ballots, held in the return board rooms of the new County Building today.

County Commissioner E. V. Babcock and County Controller Robert G. Woodside were the only "organization" men to draw favored positions, and those were only second places. Not one top position, generally regarded as worth hundreds of votes, went to organization candidates.

The candidates for the offices follow, listed in the order in which their names will appear on the ballot:

County Commissioner—William D. Mansfield, E. V. Babcock, D. S. Boyd, Charles E. Wetzel, Jesse H. Gravatt, C. C. Hamilton, E. H. Ginniff, C. C. McGovern, John J. Cavanaugh, James J. Coyne, Joseph G. Armstrong, John J. Duffy.

District Attorney—Ralph H. Smith, James H. Sheppard, Andrew T. Park.

City Council—M. J. Baker, Anne Winter, James P. Rooney, Joseph Munroe, A. D. Brandon, John D. Houston, William J. Roost, M. S. Cahill, R. J. Alderdice, James Murthe, P. J. McArdle, W. H. McClafferty, Robert Garland, T. B. Malone, C. B. Shaffer, John M. Phillips, Levi G. Stone, Thomas D. Disler, Peter G. DeMaris, W. S. Straub, W. A. Gettis, John Loebl, E. B. Brenner, A. V. B. Hightower.

Prothonotary—David B. Johns, John Vogt, T. A. Chapman, Henry S. Jeha, C. J. McBride.

Clerk of Courts—S. J. Topley, John Douglas, Jr., R. J. McGrath.

County Treasurer—J. Denny O'Neil, William Conner, Robert S. Cain, Henry Tranter, Andrew S. McKeever, Robert S. Golden, Dr. F. H. Frederick, Michael S. Joyce.

County Controller—Arch W. Lones, Robert G. Woodside, William T. Bers, D. Lee Pryde.

James P. Kerr, seeking to retain his post as City Controller, is without opposition, and the drawing for his position was conducted simply as a formality.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

MEETING Mr. Groucho Marx, of the famous combination of the Four Marx Brothers, on the street the other afternoon, that highly hilarious gentleman informed me that he was writing a book. There was nothing startling in that information. All stage comedians are writing books these days. The real trouble with the situation is that many serious novelists are really comedians, which is a shoe of a different horse.

The nature of the book that Mr. Marx is writing, however, is extremely interesting. He is doing a book on practical jokers and the methods of torture they have invented. Groucho should do an excellent job on such a subject because he and his brothers have perpetrated some of the best practical gags of any season.

Mr. Marx asked me to tell him a New York story that he could use in his book. I told him one that I had read in a newspaper. It happened in Pittsburgh. Dorothy Dix was down to begin this column the very next day. I'll tell it to you as she told it to me. I'll tell it to you as I remember it. Maybe Dorothy will tell it differently tomorrow.

It happened in Groucho's home town, Pittsburgh. During intermission a little girl named Dorothy almost drove the company crazy with her questions and her lack of her self-confident demeanor.

Mother, tried to tell her to sit still and be quiet. But how can you do that when you're in a theatre? Broadway is too much for a child.

That is mild fashion is the way she fidgeted.

Well, after weeks of this and that, Rio Rita opened in Boston. Strangely enough Dorothy's mother didn't travel with her. I don't remember what excuse the poor child gave.

Every night directly after the performance Dorothy would run right to her hotel room. For no good reason that I can determine one or two of the kids asked her to run them for a sandwich after the show. Dear little Dorothy threw up her hands in horror. Her mother would never permit it if she were around. And Dorothy certainly wasn't going to cheat.

About the fifth or sixth night Groucho, a group of showgirls and principals were sitting around the hotel room. One of the boys suggested a rag.

"Tell you what we'll do," he announced. "You know that pesty kid Dorothy? I'd like to give her a shock by telling her I'm the house detective and that she should get that man out of her room. What do you say?"

The others agreed. And a few minutes later the two had Dorothy on the phone.

"Hello," he cried gruffly. "This is the house detective speaking! We've been watching you, and we want you to get that man out of the room."

Dorothy's baby voice floated

"All right, mister," she said.

"TOASTING" expels
SHEEP-DIP BASE naturally
(Black, biting, harsh irritant chemicals)
present in every tobacco leaf

"They're out—so they can't be in!"

The finest tobacco quality plus throat protection.

Every LUCKY STRIKE is made of the finest tobacco leaves the world can offer—the finest from Turkey—the finest from Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, Georgia and the Carolinas—the Cream of many Crops throughout the world. But all tobacco leaves, regardless of price and kind, as nature produces them, contain harsh irritants. LUCKY STRIKE'S exclusive "TOASTING" Process—a process that mellows, that purifies, that includes the use of the modern Ultra Violet Ray—expels certain harsh irritants naturally present in every tobacco leaf. We sell these expelled irritants to manufacturers of chemical compounds, who use them as a base in making sheep-dip*, as well as a powerful spraying solution for fruits, flowers and shrubs—enough to permit the daily dipping of over 50,000 sheep or the daily spraying of many thousands of trees. Thus, you are sure these irritants, naturally present in all tobacco leaves, are not in your LUCKY STRIKE. "They're out—so they can't be in!" No wonder LUCKIES are always kind to your throat.

Bartender Held On Theft Charge

NEW YORK, Aug. 13. (AP.)—George C. McDonald, a bartender, was held in $1,000 bail today on a charge of suspicion of grand larceny. Samuel O'Connell, a Nevada mining engineer, claimed $600 disappeared from his pockets while he was drinking with McDonald Saturday night.

Chokes to Death On Piece of Food

James J. McFadden, 50, of 2007 Tustin street, choked to death last night at Fifth avenue and Elm street when a piece of food lodged in his throat, according to the coroner's report. McFadden collapsed in the street and was taken to Mercy Hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

These New Rejuvenating Salts Keep You Feeling Younger

AND A MILLION FAT FOLKS CAN'T BE WRONG

When you take Kruschen Salts for a few days—that old indolent, sluggish, spiritless and chair-loving feeling deserts you—it doesn't matter how fat you are—the urge for activity has got you—and you're stepping out and living!

And best of all you like living—you walk and exercise because you thought you could—and you feel fine! Kruschen is a combination of six mineral salts—

Official—Pittsburgh 111

Why not try one bottle of these rejuvenating salts, a bottle to last 4 weeks and one bottle is enough to prove to you that Kruschen will make you feel—and look—fat. Kruschen will help your sluggish system burn up the fat-producing waste matter which is making you fat—and you'll enjoy life—every minute of it—and look fat.

A nine stone woman writes: "Kruschen salts are worth their weight in gold to me."

A small bottle of Kruschen Salts, obtainable from any chemist or store throughout the world, lasts 4 weeks and costs but a trifle. If not entirely delighted with results, your money will be refunded by the proprietors, The Kruschen Salts Laboratories, Ltd., Manchester, England.

POLITICAL SIGNS PROTESTED

A protest against the political advertisements painted on the boulevard walls and roadways and the "unsightly" banners strung across the streets has been made to Mayor Charles H. Kline by Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., an officer of the Civic Club of Allegheny County.

In a letter Mrs. Thaw appeals to the Mayor to support Director Edward G. Lang of the Public Works Department in his order for the removal of the signs.

Mrs. Thaw in her letter said:

"As a citizen of Pittsburgh and an officer of the Civic Club of Allegheny County, I cannot too strongly express my disgust at the disgraceful appearance of our city. It is unsightly and untidy, pasted, posted and painted as it is with political advertisements of candidates, a large majority of whom are violating the law while appearing on a platform to uphold it, claiming honest service and the correction of existing evils."

FIRST CAME LOOSE COFFEE

NEXT CAME "BAG" COFFEE

THEN . . . COFFEE IN OLD-FASHIONED CANS

THEN . . . "VACUUM" COFFEE

NOW VITA-FRESH

The new MAXWELL HOUSE Process surpasses them all

NOTE TO COFFEE PACKERS—Coffee packers desiring to employ General Foods Corporation method of packing Maxwell House Coffee should communicate with the American Can Company, 230 Park Avenue, New York, New York, which is exclusively authorized to grant the right to use this method.

Until you taste Maxwell House Coffee as it comes to you in the new Vita-Fresh can—you do not know how delicious, how delicately fragrant, how full-bodied and full-flavored coffee can be.

That is a strong statement—but no stronger than the scientific facts justify—no more emphatic than the praise which has greeted the introduction of the coffee itself.

The defeat of Oxygen—
flavor hijacker

For years coffee packers have sought to deliver coffee to you as full-flavored as it came from the roaster.

These years are marked with milestones of gradual progress—the bag, the can, scheduled deliveries, the "vacuum" sealed can.

Only recently science discovered the real enemy of flavor—Oxygen—in every breath of air we breathe.

Oxygen seeps into every bag—lurks in every can—stubbornly remains even in the usual "vacuum."

Just read these amazing facts. These facts were established in a leading eastern university and were published in "Food Industries" (September, 1930).

In 9 days after roasting, coffee, loose or in bags, loses 63% of its flavor

In 9 days, coffee in old-fashioned cans loses 13% of its flavor

—flavor you pay for but do not receive!

And even the "vacuum" package—far superior to any previous protection—contains ten times as much air, ten times as much Oxygen, as the new Vita-Fresh package of Maxwell House Coffee.

That is why old friends of this famous southern blend are finding new and poignant pleasure in this magnificent coffee.

That is why coffee lovers by thousands and tens of thousands are swinging to Maxwell House Coffee after one thrilling and memorable trial.

We invite you to try . . . at our risk

This full-flavored Maxwell House Coffee is waiting for you at your grocer's. Please do not accept what is said here on faith. Try for yourself—and be the sole judge of merit. Order a pound of Maxwell House Coffee. Prepare it in your usual way. Serve it to your family—and if all do not agree that this is the finest coffee they ever drank—if you do not find that you get extra flavor for your money in every pound—simply return the can with the unused portion to the grocer and he will refund your money.

GARAGE BLAST KILLS 5

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Aug. 13 (AP).—Five persons were burned to death shortly after 10:15 a. m. today in a fire and explosion in a garage on the eastern limits of the city.

The fire started from an explosion which occurred as an employe in the rear of the garage poured gasoline or alcohol on the radiator of an automobile believing it to be water.

Firemen rescued all persons in the rear of the garage and then concentrated their efforts on the front.

Clergyman Files $100,000 Balm Suit

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 13 (AP).—Suit for $100,000, charging alienation of his wife's affections, was filed in Cuyahoga County court by the Rev. Alexander S. Kalassay, Elyria, against Arthur L. Garford, president of the Cleveland Automatic Machine Company.

RUNAWAY CAR WRECKS HOME

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Aug. 13 (INS).—Five persons were thrown from their beds, four automobiles were demolished and the home of Edwin Lymphany was damaged today when the "riding" car of a fast Buffalo-New York Lehigh Valley Railroad express train uncoupled itself from a string of cars raced four miles down grade and crashed into the house at Hell Gate, near here.

The car, a regulation baggage coach empty of trainmen, picked up terrific momentum as it raced down the long grade. At Hell Gate the flying car struck a sharp curve, jumped the tracks and plowed into the Lymphany home.

Mrs. Lymphany and a daughter were thrown from their beds by the impact and three other members of the family were tumbled from their slumbers. The blow tore away part of the kitchen and the car, bouncing off the building, struck four automobiles parked in the yard, wrecking them.

UNDERWRITERS TO MEET HERE

As the annual convention of the National Association of Life Underwriters will be held in Pittsburgh, Herb Campbell, program chairman, announced he had appropriate theme for next month's meeting. Speakers Davis and Reed, as well as other national figures and outstanding members of the association, are expected to address the meeting.

Handsome is as handsome does —they're FRESH!

YOU can wrap a package of cigarettes in plain ordinary Cellophane and make it look modern and brightly attractive.

But if you want a wrap like the Humidor Pack, which keeps intact all the rare flavor and aroma and natural moisture, you have to go a step further.

You have to use moisture-proof Cellophane. That costs nearly twice as much, but that is what Camel uses. And then you have to devise an air-tight seal.

The blend of fine Turkish and mild Domestic tobaccos in Camels—made dust-free by a special vacuum-cleaning process—is protected that way.

The germ-safe moisture-proof Cellophane wrapping seals in all the natural factory-freshness—seals it so tightly that wet weather cannot make Camels damp, nor drought weather make them dry.

That is why Camels are so mild, so throat-friendly, so cool.

That is why their mellow, fragrant, slow-burning enjoyment is such a grateful relief from the brash taste and barb-and-sting of stale, parched-dry cigarettes.

Handsome is as handsome does—if you want freshness in a cigarette see that you get the genuine Humidor Pack.

Then you'll appreciate why we say, try Camels for just one day, then quit them—if you can.

Tune in CAMEL QUARTER HOUR featuring Morton Downey and Tony Wons—Columbia Broadcasting System—every night except Sunday

The Loud Speaker
By Louis Reid

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The best orator on American radio is William E. Borah, Senator from Idaho. Best orator on English airwaves is Ramsey MacDonald, prime minister. The latter is heard regularly. Borah scarcely at all. Can the Idahoan be waiting for the Battle of the White House to begin?

Microphone technique may mean something to a lot of people, but not to Borah. Just as in public life no one attempts to guess what the Senator will do next, so in radio the same uncertainty prevails. The uncertainty brings headaches to broadcasting crews.

For one of his early speeches on NBC the Senator arrived in the studios many minutes in advance of his schedule, his manuscript in hand. The next time he was slated to speak he arrived just a minute or two before going on the air, and talked extemporaneously. He is just as effective, they say, with or without a manuscript.

On one occasion Borah cancelled a radio address at the last minute because he was occupied in the Senate chamber. He greeted an offer to install lines in the Capitol, bringing the microphone to him.

It remains of course a much simplified radio speaker. Much the demand for him is due to the knack of selecting subjects which usually bring page one prominence.

Always at home in front of the microphone, the Senator has been known to change speeches entirely at the last minute. Spies report he is unlike any other radio speaker. Control operators find it difficult to follow him because of his tendency to raise and lower his voice. If the weather is warm, he usually takes off his coat and rolls up his shirt sleeves.

It's time we heard Borah again. With his beautiful speaking voice, his superb delivery, his ability to give force and interest to whatever subject he selects, he does not have to take a back seat, oratorically, for even Britain's ruling Scotsman.

Why not swim, too?

A clear skin and a strong body add a touch of loveliness to any man or woman

Regardless of whether you swim or not it is human for you to want to be more attractive. Often one can gain a clear skin and a strong body—the kind that makes you feel like your natural self again—simply by adding New Strength to the blood.

When your vitality is low and you feel weak, don't care to eat, lose weight, your skin is sallow, pale or broken out with pimples or boils, you may be sure that your blood is in need of New Strength.

S.S.S. red blood for New Strength

S.S.S. red blood plays a dominant part in maintaining health. It builds and sustains . . . removes impurities from the tissues . . . gives them fresh, rich blood. When you add New Strength to the blood and bring it back to normal, your whole body is invigorated and strengthened . . . you are better able to resist infection and disease . . . your skin clears up . . . your cheeks become rosy . . . more vitality and pep naturally follow. You know a clear skin comes from within.

S.S.S. makes rich, red blood

S.S.S. is famed for its ability to build New Strength in the blood. It does it safely and effectively. One of its distinct advantages is that it is composed of fresh vegetable medicinal ingredients in concentrated form. Indeed, it is Mother Nature's formula. TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By SALLY MARTIN

Is a Girl Wise to Sow Wild Oats Before Marriage?

Does sowing wild oats make a wiser better woman?

Can Bright Light Betty settle down in a two-by-four apartment sweep and dust and cook, wrestle with an unruly budget and be content because she's already seen all the sights?

Or will she want to be on the go after thrills and whoopee and excitement because she's grown used to them and can't do without them?

READER DISAGREES

That's a serious question in this day of Freedom For Ladies . . . what do you think is the answer? I wonder if you'll agree with Claudette.

My dear Sally Martin:

I am mad and real mad, too! You said in an article not long ago that a girl who has sowed her wild oats will not settle down and be content in the same home looking at the same face every day across the dinner table.

I don't agree with you!

I have sowed wild oats. And I sowed plenty, too, and had a good time doing it. Then I married and settled down, and I am content. More contented for the last six years and it hasn't been any bed of roses, either. There has been unemployment. There have been sicknesses and heartaches.

But in sowing my wild oats, I learned that when you start something the thing to do was to finish it. And another thing I learned was that when you're sowing wild oats you have a lot of fun . . . but it gets terribly tiresome too and you are always searching for something else.

COULD JUDGE MEN

I have a daughter five and I am hoping that she will sow her wild oats too before she marries. I have made a better wife and mother because of mine. And if I'd married before I had seen a little of life, I don't think I could have gone through these last two years. But I knew that out there in the world there is nothing to compare with what I have trouble and all. When I married my husband he knew I had stepped around, and he loved me just the same. And I was in a position to judge men too . . . and I picked myself a good one.

"And another thing. There are my friends all around me getting divorces. And it's not because the girls have sowed wild oats. It's because they haven't. There is one who has lived at home all her life. She married, and the freedom went to her head. She has never gone places and done things. But this last year she has been making up for lost time. Where will it end? In Reno?

QUESTIONABLE

"There! I feel better, now I've got that off my chest! But here's to the girls who sow their wild oats before marriage, and not after! Girls who know their way around, and what's real, and what isn't.

"CLAUDETTE."

Whew! That certainly raises Cain with a lot of old established notions, doesn't it? And what's your reaction, stranger?

Do you believe with Claudette, that a woman is wiser and stronger if she sows her wild oats before marriage?

Do you think that most homes are wrecked because the little woman didn't go jazzy places and do joyous things before she was married?

Do you want your little girl to go the rounds before she dons the bridal veil? Or do you think Claudette's theories are all wet and that she may live to regret them?

Out of your own experience, what's the answer? Did you sow wild oats, and what did they do to you?

Some Women Have Mania for Matching Goods in Stores, Says Fay King

HE PAID FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS FOR A PAINTED MIRROR
A WOMAN CAN REDECORATE HER HOUSE, AND DESIGN A DOZEN DRESSES FOR DINNER AND PARTIES WITH MORE THAN A BOLT OF TAFFETA OR SATIN AND THE CLOTH OF HER IMAGINATION AND MATCHING MANIA!

By FAY KING

Men have many collecting hobbies.

Their craze for collecting may range from the tiny postage stamp to the heads and horns of wild beasts.

Some are completely fascinated by collecting paintings and first editions, or original manuscripts for which no price is too great if they can afford it.

Fine is inclined to think that even a few of them have gone in for collecting wives.

But aside from china collecting women seem to confine themselves to the matching mania.

They will run from store to store demanding samples from bolts of goods. They will tote around a handbag bulging with bits of ribbon, silk, satin and cretonne.

They probably have no intention of buying any yardage. But from these bits they derive delight.

Harry Offers Theory That Message Is Just Part of "Scare Campaign"

Lillian, my father and I were on our feet, every nerve tensed as Harry Underwood said that my father had called the turn and that there was a message inside the supposed bomb which had caused us such terror.

With Dicky close behind him, Mr. Underwood came through the door and put down the bucket he was carrying near my father.

"Whoever these birds are," Harry Underwood drawled as he put his hand down among the pieces of metal and twisted wire, "they've been raised on movie stuff from their cradle. They also know a thing or two about the old psychology dope. They couldn't have known we'd be on the front veranda, but they counted on this thing making enough noise to awaken us. Of course, they knew we'd investigate anything like this found on the front lawn, and they even foresaw the probability of our following the usual course with suspected explosives and putting the thing in water before examining it. Therefore, behold!"

He held up a crumpled packet which he had just untied from a piece of the metal.

"Oiled silk, my word!" Lillian exclaimed, and with a vague little feeling of unreality I saw in the comradely matter-of-fact glance she exchanged with her husband no trace whatever of the flaming emotion with which they had parted when he went out to investigate the mystery bomb.

"Oiled silk, no less."

"It's rather messy, Chief," he said, "but I wiped it off as well as I could."

"Thank you, but you needn't have troubled," my father said. "I've been used to messes of various sorts in my time."

He turned the packet over and over in his hands, examining it carefully, while I wondered feverishly if he ever intended to open it and guessed that the rest of the group had the same burning curiosity.

"They must have prepared this before they made the attempt to rob the bank," he said. "It looks as if they foresaw failure and made their plans accordingly."

"Do you think they ever intended to rob the bank, Chief?" Harry Underwood asked, and my father straightened in his chair and looked at him keenly.

"I think you're on the track of something which has been in the back of my mind, but which has been overshadowed by another theory," he said. "Something in the campaign of these fellows was reminiscent of some miscreants I had a hand in jailing several years ago, and I think I've let that side issue cloud my reasoning a little. Tell me what you meant by your question, or shall I open the package first?"

"I'd rather you wouldn't," the big man replied. "Of course," he added with the modesty characteristic of him, "I'm probably all wet about this, but it seemed to me from the first that it was a little too complete, just as the attempted burglary of the farmhouse was last fall. That attempt was preceded by a telephone call to Madge, and the man, Hallam, leaving a wide-open trail of his activities behind him, also left an obvious threat with Mrs. Ticer."

"A wide-open trail up to a certain point," Dicky struck in. "No one was able to trace the man, Hallam, from the moment he left Mrs. Ticer's."

"Exactly," his friend replied. "I am not belittling the cleverness of these fellows. They're there, 40 ways to the jack. What I mean is that they're not ordinary murderous thugs, who kill as a matter of course—or their leader isn't."

"You believe then," my father asked, "that their supposed attack upon the bank was never intended to go through?"

"Not only that," Mr. Underwood grinned lazily, "but I believe they psychoanalyzed you, Corwin, and the town, and deduced what would be the result of arousing suspicion that there was an attempt at bank robbery on. That they meandered around until they were sure Mrs. Ticer spied Hallam. I'm almost certain. But it was not part of their plan to be captured. Being extremely cagey themselves, they figured out the way you'd be likely to plant the side streets, and planned the North Haven stunt, which I'll tell the world they ran rather fine. Then they came through here to toss that thing in the yard, so you'd be sure to find their message. All they're aiming to do is to scare the daylights out of us, which I'll admit they came very nearly doing for a few minutes. There, chief! That's all I've got under my hair. I'm ready to hear their message if the rest of you are."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Start Baby Right, Teach Him to Be Independent

Nothing is more fascinating than to watch the growth and development of a baby. From birth onward it is an interesting study.

Dr. Copeland

The first year presents many trials and tribulations. It is a most important time for during this period the baby grows rapidly. It undergoes the change from a helpless infant into a baby that laughs, plays, stands, tries to walk and talk.

In addition to growing the child learns to eat and sleep at regular intervals. It learns how to hold up its head, to sit up, to stand and eventually to walk. Surrounding objects are of great interest to the youngster who is inquisitive and anxious to get hold of things.

At one year of age the average baby weighs three times the weight at birth. This is approximately 21 pounds. Twenty-seven to 28 inches is the measure in height.

At 12 months baby's chubbiness is replaced, usually, by a lengthening of the body. Some children remain plump at this period, while others grow tall, not gaining greatly in weight. It has been said, and truthfully so, that no two babies grow exactly alike.

At this age the baby as a rule has been weaned. It has learned to take cow's milk and various solid foods. Now it should be able to hold a cup in the hands and be familiar with the uses of a spoon.

A great mistake most mothers make at this age is to continue treating the child as an infant. It is entering upon the period of early childhood and should not be treated as a baby.

Encourage the child to be independent. Of course the child should be taught and helped. No better training can be encouraged than to have the child, at an early age, learn to do things on its own account.

Feeding and dressing alone, picking up toys and other objects from the floor, learning to pull off the stockings at bedtime and playing alone all these aid in the development of independence.

A child gifted with the virtue of independence will face the future problems and battles of life with greater ease. It is a quality which will grow more valuable with the years.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Mourning Attire

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. What is considered the correct form of mourning for a daughter (married) to wear for her dead mother? Could one of those black and white prints be worn after four and a half months, or when would it be proper?

2. How about the warm weather? What is the rule?

3. Could a dark blue spring coat with a black arm band be worn occasionally?

4. Is this the correct way to sign this letter?

Yours sincerely,
Mrs. Mary C. Holmes.

1. This question of mourning is now entirely a personal choice. The rules and regulations formerly so carefully outlined as to relationship and time of mourning, are no more. So everyone must decide for herself or himself just what is to be done. I suggest that now you wear the charming cool-looking black and white prints that are so easy to get now and that would be so especially appropriate.

2. Wear black-and-white or any other conservative combination. And remember that all-white is as "deep mourning" as all-black. And this is a relief, to the person wearing mourning and the one who is looking at the other person. For the heavily-worn, heavy-hearted materials such as crepe were uncomfortable to both wearer and observer.

3. Wear the dark coat, but don't wear the arm band. The arm band isn't necessary and isn't done much now.

4. No. The correct form is:

Yours sincerely,
Mary Clark Holmes,
(Mrs. John Holmes).

Courtesy and Superiority

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly settle an argument between an employe in my office and myself?

She says it is not proper and is being taught in schools, not to address anyone as "Yes, sir" or "No, sir" due to the fact that "Sir" is superiority. I say it is merely courtesy.

F. E.

The use of "No" and "Yes" with the name is considered best nowadays. . . . "No, Mr. Matthews" or "Yes, Mr. Andrews." The "sir" after the No or Yes is correct, and you are quite right in maintaining that the Sir is a courtesy, but in America the use of the name is considered better for all occasions.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

There's many a dry complexion that will perk up if the owner thereof will drink six glasses of water a day. Seventy per cent of the human body is water. It is vitally important to life and well-being. More water taken into the system keeps the skin moist and the moist skin is not one that wrinkles early. Turn wet, beauty seeker, turn wet.

Says a dentist who has a national reputation as an authority on the care of the teeth: "It is my opinion that proper food is the greatest factor in overcoming sensitive gums, crumbling teeth and pyorrhea. The three best foods are lettuce, milk and orange juice. One quart of milk a day, one-half head of lettuce, the juice of three large oranges will have a wonderful effect upon the vitality of teeth and gums."

Thrilling New Story Tells of Girl's Escape After Gang Murder

CHAPTER I.

She stood at the dressing table in the small hotel room and counted the money Tony had thrust upon her, with hands that shook. She did not glance into the mirror as many women would have done, yet her young face, although blind with fear, deserved the tribute of a personal appraisal.

It was very early in the morning. She had come, alone, to the hotel in Oakland the night before. Tony had told her to go there. "It's quiet, see?" he'd said, "they'll be watching the hotels in San Francisco. Register as—as Miss Smith." He'd smiled, she remembered incredulously, white teeth flashing in the dark, intent face. "I've made your plane reservations," he went on. "Miss Smith. They'll be watching the big commercial airports, too. This is safer."

He had given her a few tense, terse directions, risen from his chair at the plain deal table, bent over her a moment, kissed her stunned, cold lips into something resembling life and then, "Good-bye, kid," he'd said easily, "happy landings! Watch the Eastern papers for a personal. When I get out of this mess I'll find you again. Don't worry!" From the doorway of that little backroom in the speakeasy he'd waved to her, still sitting there. There was no one else in the room. Tony had seen to that. There, in the doorway, his lips had moved once more making no sound. But she'd thought they had formed the words—"forgive me."

She couldn't forgive him. She couldn't forgive herself.

She counted the money again. Four thousand dollars. Some day she would pay it back. How? When? To whom?

ATTRACTIVE GIRL

She put the bills in her handbag. Looked, once, briefly, into the mirror, a mechanical gesture. Pulled her small felt hat closer over the broad forehead.

Her skin was satin in texture. It was, amazingly, golden, partly a gift of nature in a benevolent mood, partly a bestowal of the years lived under the hot Hawaiian sun. Against such skin her eyes were as blue as turquoises, her hair heavy, blue black, and her mouth a wound of crimson.

She was a girl at whom the passersby would look twice . . . this "Miss Smith."

She turned from the dresser; walked across the room to the bed and snapped her overnight case shut, picked up a tweed top coat and put it over her arm. She was very plainly, very correctly dressed. Her suit, matching the top coat, was of dark blue, her fine lisle stockings, small oxfords, her gloves, smart and serviceable.

She was ready to check out. She went downstairs and asked for her bill. The clerk gave it to her incuriously, accepted the money she handed him and said something conventional and pleasant in farewell. The one uniformed factotum of the hotel took her bag out and called a taxi for her.

On the way to the private flying field she sat well back in the cab, her hat pulled low; her hands twisted together in her lap. Panic rode her like a nightmare; panic greyed the golden skin, whitened the curved red mouth, clouded the eyes of turquoise. Panic was her familiar, her traveling companion; panic ate and walked and slept with her and had done so for these last few hideous days.

THOUGHTLESS LOVE

A newsboy jumped on the running board as they slowed up traffic with early editions. "All about the mystery woman," he howled, "get your paper—all about the big gang killing. . . ."

The cab went onward with a jerk. The newsboy dropped off. Now "Miss Smith" was perfectly white, white to the lips.

If someone should see her . . . recognize her . . .? as Tony's girl?"

She mustn't think of her herself. She must think of Tony. Must pray that he get off . . . safe . . . scot-free. No matter what he had done, no matter how mistaken she had been in him—she laughed aloud, thinking of the gullible girl who had come to San Francisco from Hawaii eight short months ago—no matter how things had turned out, he had been good to her after his fashion; had even loved her—after his fashion. And she had loved him, in a thoughtless, thrilled, unthinking sort of way . . . in the way of first love, careless and sweet.

That was all over now.

She sat quite still trying to think of all his last directions. She was to go to this flying field. It was one owned by a small commercial company. They operated planes for private charter. One had been chartered by a rich man and his family, to make a two-stop flight to New York. At the last minute two of the passengers had been unable to come; one place had quickly been filled; Tony had heard of the final vacancy, in his underground fashion. How Tony heard things, she never knew, never had known. So he had reserved the place, in the name of . . . Miss Smith.

MEANS OF ESCAPE

They were at the field now. She got out of the cab and paid her driver. She walked over to the little office. A plane was just landing. Another was tuning up. She looked at it, dully. It was, she thought, the one which would take her. Once—oh, a hundred years ago, the prospect of the long flight would have filled her with adventurous rapture. Not now. Just a means to an end. Just an escape. An escape . . . from peering faces, from newspaper headlines, from some stolid faced man, a stranger, handing

More than 100 children from the Jewish Home for Babies and Children, 2508 Brackenridge avenue, were guests of the Children's Club of Pittsburgh at the first annual picnic of the organization yesterday on the grounds of the Mercantile Club in Beacon street. Mrs. Ben Vatz was chairman of the program. The Children's Club was organized recently with Mrs. Jacob Davis as chairman.

New Year greeting contributions to the home are being solicited in accordance with an ancient Hebrew custom of contributing to charity at the time of the New Year celebration, which begins September 14 and continues approximately two weeks. An increase in pledges is being asked because of increased demands upon the home for help during the last year.

Still, Home Brew Seized, Man Held Detective Shot As Highwayman

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 13.—(AP)—A detective bending over a suspicious character he shot early today was in turn critically wounded by a policeman who took him for a highwayman. Both the detective and the man he shot were reported near death by hospital physicians. The detective, Edward Gahan, 30, was wounded in the stomach by a bullet fired by Patrolman Francis Pollazza, 28. The wounded suspect, who said he was Meyer Grossman, 28, was shot under the left shoulder.

Prohibition agents yesterday seized a 100-gallon still and destroyed 25 barrels of mash in a raid on a dwelling of 1113 Premier street, they reported. No arrests were made.

Confiscation of four gallons of moonshine and 160 bottles of home brew in the home of Carmello Lettiere, 51, of 508 Margaretta street, Braddock, resulted in his arrest, agents said.

MEDIA, Pa., Aug. 13.—(AP)—The Hedgerow Players have given a benefit. Between acts of a crook play, two gunmen robbed Miss Meriam Phillips, star of the cast, of the receipts amounting to $70. The robbers escaped while Scotland Yard got its man on the stage.

NEW RAIL SPAN REPLACING OLD

The worn and corroded beams of the 51-year-old bridge over the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks on Twenty-eighth street and a new steel structure with its bright red steel fabric interwine today.

The new bridge, being laid on the foundation and beams of the old, is supporting it, and it is supporting the new one.

The plan, worked out by the city's Bridge Construction Bureau and the American Bridge Company, makes it possible for the erection of the new structure without halting traffic in the Pennsylvania Railroad yards. The balance of the superstructure is so maintained that the strain is divided.

The old structure, built in 1880, was condemned as unsafe.

SEEK TRI-STATE MINE PARLEY

WHEELING, W. Va., Aug. 13.—(AP)—J. F. Ebeling, Wheeling financier and one of the formulators of a plan to create a new competitive mining field, today said a conference of mayors and operators in the interested districts was being considered to further the project.

The new competitive mining field would embrace the so-called lake trade districts of eastern Ohio, western Pennsylvania and most of West Virginia. The plan includes a semi-dictatorship controlled by the presidents of the state universities of Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia. This body would conduct a survey of conditions, ascertain potential production and consumption, and seek a balance between the two. Governmental control is not advocated.

U. S. CONTROL OF MINES MAY BE ASKED

Hope for Relief Placed in President Pending Plea For Action by Congress

Direct to President Hoover as a practical engineer may be carried pleas for stabilizing the bituminous coal industry through federal control, it was learned today. The President may be asked by coal operators and others to suggest a method to ameliorate the conditions of the industry.

This information came to light following publication of a statement by Joseph T. Miller, former assistant fuel administrator of the Pittsburgh area during the World War, that the government should give assurance that something will be done to aid the coal industry.

Miller said today:

"The whole question is a matter for action by Congress under the leadership of President Hoover. In the meantime the President, no doubt, can do something to bring at least temporary relief."

The plan to have the government operate coal mines as a public utility is being given serious thought.

Groups of coal operators have been discussing its various angles and the ideas being threshed out will probably take the form of a letter to President Hoover, seeking his advice and aid.

Plans also have been discussed regarding the operation of coal mines under state control. This would require uniform laws in the central competitive states, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky.

The state proposition is not looked upon with as much favor as federal control. The competitive relationship as to wages and freight rates is regarded as an obstacle to regulation by states.

Thought also is being given a suggestion by Samuel A. Taylor, mining engineer, that the entire bituminous coal field of the country be divided into 11 producing districts.

DRIVER INJURED BY FARES, MAN HURT IN ROW

Police Scout Car Break Up Battle in Home Over Earlier Boulevard Clash

A taxicab driver and a passerby were beaten early today in a renewal of taxicab strike violence.

Those injured were James Gaventi, 26, of 440 Taylor street, who alleged he was beaten in Baum boulevard by two men who engaged his cab in the downtown section, and Patrick Rodgers, 29, of 4773 Juniper street, the innocent passerby. Gaventi was taken to West Penn Hospital.

Rodgers' police say was drawn into a fight in Juniper street, by a group of taxicab drivers seeking to avenge the thrashing of Gaventi. Rodgers and eight of the drivers were arrested, among them being John Tate, 32, of 1609 Chester avenue, one of the leaders in the "back-to-work" movement.

In Center Avenue Police Court today, Patrolmen Carl Lenhart and John Rodzynas, of the police scout car No. 7, testified that Rodgers was attacked when the drivers went to his home in search for the assailant of Gaventi. Rodgers denied that anyone was in the house and he was beaten. The fight was at its height when the scout car arrived and Rodgers and seven drivers, Alex G. Keffer, 27, of 71 West Francis street, Brentwood; August Pisino, 28, of 1018 Webster avenue; Robert Novak, 26, of 826 Lockhart street; Joseph Vicinick, 26, of 2115 Merriman street; K. Wilson, 30, of 1327 Howe street; Louis Natson, 28, of 608 Hollow street; Patrick Gallagher, 21, of 2007 Watson street, and Tate were arrested.

The drivers admitted that they were seeking to avenge the beating of Gaventi and participating in the fight at Juniper street, but did not name their foes. All were fined $5 or 5 days in jail with the exception of Rodgers, who was discharged.

Anne Real Boss And Envy of All Backseat Drivers

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Mrs. Lindy is plenty envied by all backseat drivers.

The Eagle's mate is going around the world in the rear tonneau.

She controls the navigation. Lindy must go where she directs.

That's real happiness for a rumble seater. And shows that the tourists in the back are coming to the front.

The flying vagabonds have reached Nome, where Mrs. Lindy purchased a package of raisins. In case they land in a rice field in Japan breakfast will be all ready.

Backseat chauffeurs have acquired notable triumphs on land. But Mrs. Lindy is the first one to join the Navy.

Lindy will not look at the compass over the Pacific. He will take all directions from Mrs. Lindy's index finger.

And when a lady points she goes as straight to the mark as an arrow to the target or a committee to its appropriation.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 13.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Say, you know this Wickersham report that we all been kidding about; that thing has dug up a lot of mighty valuable dope at that. About everything they went into they found was "cockeyed." Our deportation of aliens — they found we had sent everybody away that we shouldn't and none that we should. Now they show up this "third degree," where they beat you till you admit to anything that has been done even if it happened before you was born. All we got to do in this country to find out anything is wrong is just to investigate it. Anyhow him and his gang wasn't loafing.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Headquarters of the West Virginia Mine Workers last night said that C. Frank Keeney, president of the union, and other officials were out in the Kanawha coal fields instructing striking miners to apply for their old jobs.

Charged with disorderly conduct at North Side Police Station, Miss Brown was released on $25 forfeit, but did not appear when her case was called today.

Fallston Officials Defy State, Keep Road Shut

Although the State Highway Department has ordered removal within 48 hours of the barricade Fallston borough officials placed at the foot of Fallston Hill on route 51, Fallston officials have not removed the blockade and show no intention of doing so.

Samuel S. Lewis, Secretary of Highways, yesterday notified borough officials they had 48 hours to remove their barriers or establish a detour. Former Judge Richard S. Holt, of Beaver County, borough solicitor, sent a message to Lewis that a detour was established Saturday when the road was closed.

Lewis threatened court action if his orders were not obeyed. A court fight would be welcomed, Frank G. Blanchard, president of Borough Council, said. The borough closed the road, claiming the stretch of roadway at the foot of the long hill to Patterson Heights was a danger spot. The borough has requested the state to remove the curve. When the requests were ignored, the road was closed.

Guard Away, Boy Drowns, Mother's Suit Charges

Charging negligence on the part of the city in the death of her son, Peter, 12, drowned in the Monongahela River July 28, Mrs. Julia Patori, of 3221 Harcums way, South Side, has filed suit for $10,000.

A lifeguard, supposed to be at the swimming beach at South Sixteenth street, was absent when the boy stepped into a sand hole, the mother charges. He had been in the water only four minutes when pulled out by companions, the rescuers were ignorant of resuscitation methods, and by the time assistance arrived the boy was dead, the suit declares.

Mrs. Patori, mother of two other children, said that at the time her son was drowned she did not have sufficient money to pay the funeral expenses.

Director of Public Safety James M. Clark today said, through a clerk, William Reese, he had investigated, the boy's drowning and that the place of drowning was not at the city beach, but farther up the river.

EXPECT RECORD PICNIC CROWD OF VETERANS

Sun-Telegraph Outing May Draw 4,000; Legion and V. F. W. Heads Map Plans

Heads of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars met today to discuss plans for the twelfth annual Sun-Telegraph picnic for former and present service men and women, at Kennywood Park, August 29.

Letters of invitation are being prepared and will be sent to all posts in Allegheny and adjoining counties. This year's attendance is expected to exceed last year's figure which reached nearly 4,000.

PROGRAM FEATURES

Final appointments of committees have not yet been made. A tentative program of entertainment includes free amusements, a treasure hunt for prizes, free dancing and a death-defying park act of the Looping Nixes who ride high-powered racing motorcycles 16 feet in the air upside down in a steel lattice cage.

Veterans will receive registration cards at the park gates. In exchange they will be given amusement tickets for themselves and women companions. A Legion or Veterans membership card, a soldier's discharge button or uniform are credentials for identification. Legionnaires are requested to wear uniforms or caps.

Each strip of tickets will have a number corresponding to numbers on banners around the park. Twelve prizes will be given in the treasure hunt, to persons who find the banner which corresponds to their ticket strip number.

LEGION GIVES SUPPORT

American Legion participation in the picnic was officially indorsed Monday evening, August 10, by the Allegheny County Executive Committee, according to Robert K. Cochrane, Jr., county adjutant, who today conferred with Howard Croushore, publicity chairman of the Legion for Allegheny County, and with J. L. Bingham of Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Bulletins will be posted in all posts announcements made at post meetings and invitations extended to all men's and women's service organizations. Posts outside of Allegheny County are also eligible to attend.

ARMELLA MORODER, 10 — BENNO, 3 — ALPHONSE J. MORODER

Tiny Benno, Milwaukee boy blind since birth, and his sister and father pictured during their stop in Pittsburgh on their trip to Vienna, where a far-off specialist is the last resort to give him his sight. Many specialists in America could not help Benno gain sight he never had.

Boy in Quest of Sight Traveling Half Way Around World

A three-year-old blind boy is traveling half way around the globe in an effort to attain the gift he most desires—sight. He is Benno Moroder, of 2525 North First street, Milwaukee, and his only hope lies in Dr. Moriz Franz Haas, noted Vienna eye specialist.

The boy left home by automobile Saturday, accompanied by his father, Alphonse J. Moroder, president of the International Statuary and Altar Company; his sister, Armella, 10, and A. J. Cassel, also of Milwaukee. They stopped in Pittsburgh yesterday. Mrs. Moroder and seven other children are at home.

The party will sail from New York August 17, with the hope that little Benno will be able to see within two months. The operation probably will take place in about four weeks. The boy's father said:

"We have done almost everything we can for Benno. He loves the light, and his favorite toys are flashlights. Our only hope lies in Dr. Haas. I am sure that Benno will soon have his sight. If he doesn't—if the best doctor on the globe cannot help him—What are we to do? We have sorrowed for years over our boy."

Benno was blind at birth. All of the others have normal sight.

Following the operation, the party will go to Jerusalem where shrines will be visited, and where Moroder will make a study of the Jerusalem hills for panoramas which are to be made for the Franciscan fathers; they will return to America in three months.

BANK SUSPECT'S RETURN HERE SOUGHT

Philadelphia Also Wants Man Held There, Charged With Perry Holdup Complicity

City Detective Walter Monaghan, in Philadelphia today, was endeavoring to return here for trial Joseph Citrock, 26, one of six men indicted for the holdup December 13 of the Perry State Bank, 3908 Perrysville avenue.

Philadelphia wants Citrock for bank robbery also, according to word received by Pittsburgh detectives. Philadelphia authorities said the prisoner must first face the charges in that city and advised city detectives to lodge a detainer against him.

Citrock's alleged accomplices, Harry Hoover, Edward Pishney and Emil Grayshock, are serving long terms in the penitentiary. Ben Lepkowitz, another of the gang, and said to have been the leader, died in a New York hospital several weeks after he had been shot by a New York detective.

The last member of the gang, Mike, alias Melville, is still at large. The loot in the bank stickup amounted to $5,085. Two days after the robbery police recovered $1,560 in silver which the bandits secreted in a Tripoli street rooming house. The three convicted bandits were sentenced about a month after the holdup.

Girl Escapes After Gang Murder

her a subpena . . . from men who would try to win from her all her knowledge of Tony, his means of living, his method of business, his whereabouts . . .

An escape

At the office the formalities were completed, the money paid. Miss Smith name was crossed off the list. The overnight stops explained to her; the route which would be taken. There was a refreshment stand nearby, a mushroom-like growth. She could have coffee there, the man in the office told her. She refused, forcing a smile. She had had early breakfast at her hotel. Mr. Eames and his party had arrived, she was told. They were waiting for one more passenger "we expect her at any moment now," said the office manager.

IS RECOGNIZED

The girl left the office, stood for a moment at the barriers to the field. An elderly man, a fat, comfortable woman and a young man stood together, their luggage about them, talking excitedly. It was a very windless, warm day in summer. The sky was without a cloud. The sun shone brilliantly. How could it? thought the girl, standing there alone.

The field was vocal with activity. The plane, in readiness, was of a twin-motored cabin type, carrying eight passengers, including pilot, mechanic and steward. The girl walked toward it just as the office manager turned from his desk to greet the last arrival who came up in a panting taxi.

Presently . . .

The passengers climbed in, settling themselves. Mr. Eames arranged his party fussily. The office manager, standing on the field, made the introductions. Mr. Eames, his wife and son acknowledged the presence of "Miss Smith." They looked conscious that she had only joined the party by a fluke, the failure of their own friends to make the trip. The last passenger was also a woman, a young woman. She climbed in, taking her place beside the solitary girl. She casually looked at her and then smiled suddenly, with obvious delight.

"Why, Fanchon Meredith!" she exclaimed, "who in the world would have thought of seeing you here!"

START JOURNEY

Mrs. Eames was getting herself settled with jerky gestures. "You know each other," she beamed . . . "how nice!" Her manner was very pink tea. The girl called Miss Smith who had just been addressed as Fanchon Meredith murmured something. She had flushed and her heart was beating unsteadily. The other girl supplied the date.

"Of course . . . we came to San Francisco from Hawaii on the same boat, months ago," she said, and added reproachfully, "Why didn't you look me up, you said you would!"

Fanchon Meredith lifted her turquoise blue eyes briefly.

"I've been so busy . . ." she said.

"So have I, only imagine," the other girl began when suddenly there was a shout . . . a call . . . high, clear, triumphant, after the fieldman's signal.

Contact!

The engines turned over, the plane skimmed the ground, rose without a jar. "Well," said Mrs. Eames, spreading her skirts, "Great, isn't it?" her husband asked her and added, "worth the money."

They were off on the long trip.

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

I hope that night watchman at the Long Island Railroad crossing feels better now that that boy and girl were killed the other night . . . I've passed the spot often in a car and shuddered at the man's negligence . . . He gives you at least a full two seconds' warning that a train is coming . . . Then he lowers the gates—upon which is draped a small-time red lamp that is visible only when you are on top of it . . . That lawyer with the nice huge burn on his wrist probably won't paw the girls for a while . . . Not with that hand, anyhow . . . Femme reporters have complained about him plenty . . . But it remained for one of the darlings to Think Fast When He Got Gay . . . She went to his office to check up on a divorce story and he crushed her to him . . . Her cigaret (in one free hand) served her faithfully, however . . . She reached back of her and planted the burning ciggie hard on his wrist, and he is still hollering Uncle! . . . His wife, most likely, was told a different tale about that wrist-burn—the big bum! . . . Wonder if it is true that Winchell Smith, the playwright, really tells the story on himself? . . . I mean the one about his investing $25,000 in a potato farm out West many seasons ago—and then went broke. . . . He peddled the farm for almost nothing, and quicker than you can say: "I'll have the same"—the new owners struck oil!

Poor Joe LeBlang—if he were living now he would be so miserable . . . Joe was beloved because of his contributions to so many charities . . . And for his generosity to the needy in the allied professions . . . What a queer twist of fate! . . . That American Union Bank collapse the other day made it tougher for so many boys and girls around town—and if that institution doesn't pay the depositors in full then Joe will have been the indirect cause for the savings losses of many he helped . . . Joe was interested in that bank . . . Every year, at Christmas time, he gave gifts to the box-office treasurers and their assistants . . . The gifts were bankbooks—and Joe started the accounts with $10 or $25 . . . To inspire them all to save their money—and so many of the crowd made this money the nucleus of their accounts . . . Gee, LeBlang wouldn't have had it this way, at all! . . . Were he here now he'd be the first to make good those losses . . . On second thought, a lot of the coin he left must have perished, too . . . Funny the late Edgar Saltus and his snappy retorts aren't revived more than they are . . . I like his crack to that woman: "You are an angel—don't try to be a Saint! It's a step backward!" . . . And how he stifled a contemporary who asserted that he did not believe in miracles. . . . Whereupon Edgar niftied, "This is strange, indeed, considering that it took a number of them to keep him out of Sing Sing!" . . . What an enviable pair of fangs!

I like that little madrigal by Bob Fender, the one that goes: "You remind me of my mother—somehow—or other." . . . Gets me a little . . . They say the Warner Brothers are closing their story department and will throw 500 writers out of work . . . Hope they throw the story out, too . . . Wonder if it is true, too, that Mrs. Vallee is a very sick girl and that Rudy knew it when he married her? . . . They say that's the reason why it was announced so soon after the marriage that they would have to part—and that she would spend her time where the weather was warmer—for her health . . . Here's hoping she gets rosy cheeks soon again . . . Too few people appear to realize that Bing Crosby, whose ditty deliveries are catching on, isn't a newcomer at all . . . Some of the careless commentators would have subscribers believe he is copying another . . . Which isn't true . . . Bing served Paul Whiteman for years as one of the Rhythm Boys, and only recently struck out on his own name . . . His "Wrap Your Troubles in Dreams" on the platters is grand . . . Reminds me of Bix Biederbeck, who once played the trumpet for Whiteman . . . He passed on the other day, and none of the rags heard about it . . . Quite a character, Bix . . . Whiteman once scolded and fined him for missing a special train going South . . . Bix hired a plane, and upon his arrival went to his hotel for a nap, and woke up just in time to muff the matinee, anyway!

It is most amusing to read or hear the complaints of the anti-prohibitionists . . . Not always do they back up their argument with uncommon sense . . . The antis now assert that part of the wheat surplus is due to the conversion to wheat of acreage formerly devoted to rye and barley—used in the manufacture of beer and whisky . . . The argument is not justified by the facts . . . Barley acreage in 1929 was almost double that of 1916—the last normal year before the war and Volstead . . . And rye acreage showed a small increase . . . The real trouble, it appears, is that we plant about 15 per cent more wheat than before the Big Tiff, in spite of the fact that Mr. Hoover taught us all how to get along on less! . . . Plus the fact that most of the diet fads remind you to lay off wheat bread—or at least white bread . . . I am commencing to feel like an editorial writer, which is something I promised my mother I'd never turn out to be . . . A funnier gag is the new version of the famous line: "What the country needs is a good five-cent cigar!" . . . The way it now reads is: "What the five-cent cigar needs is a good country!"

To the average subscriber the numerous "suits for damages" against notables are just so much reading matter, one presumes. But when you know the "inside" to many of the actions—and the persons connected with them—you get a little sick, wondering why they are permitted to get away with their racket . . . A more devastating racket than the gangsters and their schemes . . . Some of the suits now in the rags are merely blackmail gags—but how! . . . Usually the accused has great prestige in the town or throughout the country . . . To fight the suit in court means sour exploitation—and it might retard whatever success or progress is in the cards . . . "Well, then," suggests the accuser, or the lawyer for the racketeer, "why not settle it out of court?"

For a while I was afraid I'd be all alone in my little asylum . . . Now I have company . . . Those lawyers, frinstance . . . The ones defending that book published against a reporter's suit for libel . . . The attorneys, and their faces didn't get a bit red, either, had the unintelligence to tell the judge that New York reporters cannot be libeled—"because they lead an erratic and Bohemian existence, and what might be libelous when said of a merchant or a professional man is not libelous when said of a reporter!" . . . It's really getting awful . . . I mean it is something to worry about . . . It is getting more difficult every day, trying to be funny with such competition!"

Bills Change Today and Friday

Joe E. Brown comes in person to the Stanley stage tomorrow. On the screen will be Helen Twelvetrees in "A Woman of Experience." Joe, it is stated, will tell his famous "Mouse" story.

William Boyd, Lilyan Tashman, Regis Toomey, Irving Pichel and Sally O'Neil have leading roles in "Murder By The Clock," mystery picture opening Friday in Loew's Penn. On the stage will be Eddie Conrad and Marion Eddy in "Star Dust."

SHERMAN FEATURED

Lowell Sherman and Mae Murray are co-featured in the new comedy-drama, "High Stakes," opening Friday in the Sheridan Square. Sherman also directed the picture, which has Edward Martindale, Karen Morley and Ethel Levey in the cast.

"Too Many Cooks," with Bert Wheeler and Dorothy Lee, opens a week's engagement in the Harris Saturday. Roscoe Ates, who was in "Cimarron," also is in this film.

"The Smiling Lieutenant," with Maurice Chevalier, Miriam Hopkins, Charles Ruggles and Claudette Colbert, will go into a second and final week next Monday in the Warner.

NOW IN EAST END

"Dirigible," featuring Jack Holt, Ralph Graves and Fay Wray, begins a three-day engagement on the Enright screen today. It previously was shown for two weeks in the Warner and previously in the Pitt.

Ruth Chatterton, in "The Magnificent Lie," will be the screen feature when the Fulton reopens Friday, August 21. Ralph Bellamy has the leading male role and Stuart Erwin also is prominent.

Undoubtedly the film job will interfere with that plan of Bannister and Ann Harding to take an airplane vacation trip. They were talking of flying to Cuba.

FILM KIDS PRECOCIOUS

Child stars in motion pictures mature normal youngsters in the classroom, according to Rachel Smith, in charge of the school on the Paramount lot. Jackie Searl, save Miss Smith, is one of the smartest boys she has ever seen. At the age of 10, she declares, he could enter the eighth grade in public school. Mitzi Green, who is 11, could do the same. These two youngsters already are beginning algebra and elementary physics. During the school year, they study three hours a day and have one hour of supervised recreation. They are given very little memorizing to do, as the lines in their parts are considered sufficient exercise in this respect.

Mitzi Green

WILL BE BANNISTER'S

"Suicide Fleet" will be Bannister's first picture since "The Girl of the Golden West." Before that, he played opposite his wife in "Paris Bound."

Printers' Tourney Originated Here Back in 1906

Peter O'Hara Leads Local Pros. Swissvale's Champions.

SOUVENIR RECALLS OLD GAME

At Exposition Park Sunday the Union Printers began their [illegible] baseball tournament with teams from Pittsburgh, Chicago, Cleveland, New York, Cincinnati, Boston, Washington, St. Paul, Detroit, Baltimore, St. Louis and Hartford competing. [illegible] was held in Pittsburgh, which has the honor of staging the first printers' baseball tournament ever held in the country. The idea originated back in 1906, as the accompanying reproduction of a souvenir scorecard will testify.

The souvenir, in the possession of George Bradley, secretary-treasurer of the Pittsburgh printers' team and employe of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, has been preserved through the years. It was printed on the back of a lineotype matrix for a game played at Exposition Park between the Pittsburgh Dispatch team, Pittsburgh champions, and the New York American team. Note that the players' [illegible] Hearst's New York Americans. Mr. Hearst now is the owner of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The Pittsburgh team, which [illegible] pennant, was composed of James Whalen, shortstop; R. Wiard, pitcher; Frank B. Wiard, pitcher; Frank Moore, catcher; Monroe Warren, first base; W. [illegible], second base; Garrison, second base; Frank Dyer, [illegible]; A. [illegible], left field; Jack Sanders, [illegible]; Joe Whalen, right field; Connolly, [illegible]; Smullen, [illegible]; Hardies, [illegible]; Johnson, [illegible]; Woods, [illegible]; Conn'lly, [illegible]; Arder's, [illegible]; Don'v'n, [illegible]; O'Brien, [illegible]; Smullen, [illegible]; Rev., [illegible].

SCORECARD OF GAME THAT LED TO BIG SERIES

J. O. Cramblitt, outfielder, and R. F. Sanders, [illegible] M. Mostoller, right-fielder; W. F. Schlosser, [illegible] A. Hintz, were associated with the team of [illegible] Schlosser being the [illegible] Charles Power, sports writer for the Dispatch, was the only Pittsburgh man in the game. Power.

Of the members of the Dispatch team in that pioneer game with Hearst's New York Americans, Kennor, Dyer, Joe Whalen, Modispacher and Schlosser are employes of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Jim Whalen is on the Post-Gazette and Garrison and Monar have been [illegible] for years. Arder, Sanders and Hunter are dead.

The game was organized when the New York team, champions of the Morning Newspaper League, [illegible] challenges to the union champions of other cities offering to come to Pittsburgh for a share of the receipts would be met. From Pittsburgh the visitors went on to Chicago and other cities. Five of these games developed the annual series which has pitted newspaper nines of Baltimore and Hamilton, Ont., against each other for years, a golf championship tournament having been added in recent years as a feature.

Peter O'Hara, the solid man of the Westmoreland Country Club, takes no back seat to any of the golfing professionals in these parts, as he demonstrated when he led the field in the recent Western Pennsylvania open championship tournament at the Field Club. Large Peter for a long time has been the most consistent professional in the district in tournament play. He always is up there and has made a fine showing in the national open for a couple of seasons head running and would be one of the big stars if he could pull out about the twenties playing with the Tommy Smiths, Hagens and Farrells. He is a worthy West Penn champion, and no mistake.

Reinforcements [illegible] to the Pittsburgh baseball [illegible] the American League which [illegible] the eight-club circuit. [illegible] now is in Cleveland, [illegible] the [illegible] first [illegible] the right to compete in the Junior American League [illegible] championship finals at Houston, Tex., next week. Word [illegible] Clarksburg to Houston [illegible] to [illegible] upon the completion of the [illegible] tion. The [illegible] have [illegible] a [illegible] that will be [illegible].

Benny Leonard, resigned lightweight champion of the world, who is talking about staging a comeback as a boxer, is out of professional hockey, according to word from New York. Benny got into the game as head of the Pittsburgh club in the National League and lost money here and then he went to Philadelphia as president of the Quakers, who are reputed to have dropped $100,000 trying to make a go of it last winter. It is doubtful if Benny had his own money invested in the ice game, in fact it was generally understood he was working for Bill Dwyer, owner of the New York Americans.

Pittsburgh came back with a fine financially last winter with a franchise in the International League and Roy Schmidt, a hockey man from his toes up in command. His motto is "Every man to his own calling," or words to that effect. And now Benny's back in the boxing racket in which he knows his way around or did.

The Sports Editor is pinch hitting in this column for James J. Corbett, the regular conductor, who is on vacation.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT — By RIPLEY

(Reg. by U. S. Patent Office)

(On request, sent with stamped addressed envelope, Ripley will send proofs and details of anything depicted by him in these cartoons.)

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY—THE ASTOUNDING NUMBER OF MOVES IN CHESS—There are more than 200,000 ways of playing the first four moves alone on a chess board. The two kings with a single reacting piece can be transposed 150,000 times. With the first 10 moves, the total of possible ways rises to 169,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000. On the basis of these calculations, it is possible to estimate the total number of possible moves. A rather conservative estimate fixes this total at 20,689,631,968, followed by 78 naughts. It is impossible to convey an adequate description of the magnitude of these figures, as they defy human imagination. See Prof. Jaenish "L'Application de l'Analyse Mathematique au Jeu des echecs," Vol. 2; also James Mason's "The Principals of Chess."

INJURY KEEPS YOUNG STAR ON BENCH

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Howard Groskloss, native son of Pittsburgh, whose second-base play cemented the teamwork of the Pirates just before the club started a winning drive, is lost to the Buccos for an indefinite period, it developed today.

The Amherst star twisted his right leg during the infield practice preceding yesterday's doubleheader with the Giants. Howdie tried to stay on the job, but he was missing before the second inning of the opener was over and the indications today were that the lad would be out for the rest of the week, perhaps longer.

Naturally, Manager Ens received the news with much regret. The Pirates must play three bargain bills between now and Monday and Groskloss's presence in the lineup was to be desired. His absence will influence the rival pilots to save up their southpaw pitchers for the Buccos. It was the dose of this sort of medicine that sank the Pirate ship early in the season.

GET EVEN BREAK

Remy Kremer achieved a 6-to-4 success over the men of McGraw in the early light of yesterday. The second battle was a walkaway for the Giants. Bill Walker held the Buccos to three hits, the Giants hammering out a flock of tallies. The score was 9 to 0.

Mel Ott featured the dual battle with three homers, but the jokey rightfield fence made the feat possible. One of the circuit hits was a sickly fly that can only be classed as a popup, but conditions here enable the batters to win homers on lofts of this sort. George Grantham also hit a homer into the close-up section.

The Pirates won the opener in the third when they reached Carl Hubbell for five runs. Kremer had to bear down all the way, but this he was able to do. It was the Bucs' first win over Hubbell since August, 1928.

Heinie Meine was the victim of a big Giant offensive in the second game. The Prince of Luxembourg had an off day, while Walker was better than he has been against the Buccos this season.

Two featured games in the West Penn League should interest local sandlot fans this evening.

Out at Homestead, the Aces will have an opportunity to avenge that early season defeat when they meet the Marty Griffin club of the Hill. The Griffins feel they will take the Homestead team again, with Zigiotti hurling. Zigiotti has been poison to the Steelers this season.

Reliance will meet the Martins of Garfield, at the Homewood Playgrounds. The Martins gave Reliance quite a battle in that final game in the first half, when Imhoff lost by the single run.

By the way, the defeat given Reliance in the C. & I. loop by the Riecks was the first defeat in three seasons, which is something of a record.

Two games will be played in the City League. Dormont faces another tough foe, opposing the North Side Civics. Art Rooney and his band of fighting North Siders have shown a penchant for setting down Dormont this year, and this will probably trouble the South Hills team a plenty.

The J. J. Thomas nine goes to Olympia Park, and hardly will accomplish much if the Books are in form. The Welsh aggregation looks like a sure bet for that second half title. Of course Thomas is the one club in the league that wins when it seems to have little chance. Plenty of fight is aboard the Bloomfield ship and if Leon twirls anything may happen.

The Homestead Grays captured their ninth triumph in a row yesterday by defeating the Parker's Landing nine, 7 to 1. Williams limited the Landing entry to three hits and clouted a homer to aid his own cause.

Penn Central of Altoona defeated the Crawfords 2-1 Two errors and a single in the seventh inning accounting for the winning run.

Monar Beats Boyle At Conneaut Lake

CONNEAUT LAKE PARK, Pa., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Seven boxing bouts were held here last night in the amateur glove show conducted under the auspices of the Northern Pennsylvania Firemen's Association.

In the feature bout, Paul Monar of Homestead weighing 115 pounds defeated HARRY Boyle, clever Meadville scrapper, in three rounds. The summary:

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—The Cardinals bought another minor league club last week. That makes eight teams the Cards control. They've got so many rookies on their farms they are storing them in silos and grain elevators. Any other big league club has to pay $40,000 or $50,000 for a promising player, but the Cards just harvest one off their farm and he only stands them about 22 cents a bushel.

Nick Altrock

They ship 'em from farm to farm in box cars instead of Pullmans and it ain't till the rookies are promoted to the Cards they learn Judge Landis is the head of baseball and not the Federal Farm Board.

You can't beat a system like that.

Tank Car Shortage Due to Oklahoma Suspension

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE SUSPENSION OF OIL production in Oklahoma has resulted in an acute shortage of tank cars as refineries have been scrambling to get equipment to bring supplies of crude from other districts.

Tank car companies report that virtually all their equipment has been leased. Many refineries have signed long term contracts. The prices at which tank cars are being rented have been materially strengthened.

This situation brings attention to a group of companies which have been maintaining their earnings at levels close to those of last year. If present conditions in Oklahoma continue these organizations may end the year with larger profits than in 1930.

Even before the Oklahoma shutdown, tank cars were in nearly as great demand as a year ago. The Pennsylvania-Conley Tank Car Company reports that the percentage of its equipment standing idle was unusually small.

General American Tank Car Corporation also has had its equipment well rented. Its earnings in the first half of the present year were about one third less than in the corresponding period of 1930, an exceptionally good year. It is understood that the decline was largely attributable to reduced activity in the railroad car building portion of the business.

Pipe Line Competition Not Serious

CONTRARY TO THE GENERAL impression, oil pipe lines are not hurting the business of the tank car companies. There is nothing new about the use of pipe lines in the oil industry. Their development has gone hand in hand with that of the tank car since the birth of petroleum refining. Tank cars are facing no competition today which is not comparable to that of past years.

There have always been oil wells and refineries which have not been suitably located for connection with pipe lines. While the transportation of gasoline is a new development, leaders in the oil industry do not expect the tank car to be replaced as one of the principal mediums for moving the products of refineries. Even where gasoline pipe lines have been installed, tank cars are still used for distribution from the terminal points.

Companies leasing tank cars have been developing new fields. Cars are now leased for the transportation of a wide range of products including alcohol, alkalis, acids, chlorine, molasses, milk and liquified gases. General American Tank is experimenting with aluminum tank cars to transport products which cannot be placed in steel containers.

More Gasoline Sold

IF YOU WERE TO BE TOLD about an industry which increased the domestic consumption of its product 2.26 per cent in the first half of 1931 and took only a moderate loss in its export trade, making total demand only 2.82 per cent less than a year ago, you would expect to hear about a depression proof business which was maintaining its earnings at peak levels.

But it happens that the oil industry has reported this record for the sale of gasoline. The troubles of oil were not helped last week. In fact, production of crude climbed up another notch in spite of the efforts of "Alfalfa Bill" Murray in Oklahoma.

The American Petroleum Institute says that crude oil output last week reached a daily average of 2,555,550 barrels. This was 54,900 barrels more than in the previous week and 75,200 barrels more than a year ago.

A jump of 56,650 barrels in the daily production of East Texas last week was responsible. This section poured 654,200 barrels a day on to the market. A year ago no production was reported for this section. The balance of Texas reduced its output.

The work of "Alfalfa Bill's" army has not shown important results so far. Oklahoma's daily output dropped only 3,850 barrels to 421,400 barrels. Oil men attribute this to the fact that many oil producers opened their wells wide in order to accumulate a supply just before the arrival of the National Guard.

OIL RAISED IN EAST TEXAS

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Magnolia Petroleum Company has posted a price of 25 cents a barrel for oil at the wells in East Texas.

This marks a resumption of posted prices in the field, from which the major companies previously had withdrawn. The present average price for East Texas crude was 15 cents a barrel, although some sales had been made at 18 cents.

AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 13.—With its signing by Gov. Sterling the new Texas oil and gas conservation law has gone into effect. Gov. Sterling still held the threat of martial law over the East Texas fields, however, and said he would enforce it if necessary to stop excessive production.

Under the broad definitions of waste which the new Texas oil law contains, proration of production will be accomplished on order of the Railroad Commission.

Copper Companies Consider Merger

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Special meetings of shareholders of Phelps Dodge Corporation and Calumet and Arizona Mining Corporation have been called for September 21 in connection with the acquisition of assets and properties of Calumet and Arizona by exchange of Phelps Dodge stock.

Steel Production Holds in Britain

LONDON, Aug. 13.—British output of steel ingots in July totaled 428,700 tons, against 428,900 in June.

Pig iron output totaled 317,000 tons, against 323,800 in June. There were 70 furnaces in blast at the end of July, against 76 a month previous.

Company Planning Texas Pipe Line

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The Texas Pipe Line Company is beginning construction of a 12-inch pipe line from Gladewater, in the East Texas oil field, to Port Arthur, a distance of approximately 190 miles. The line probably will cost not less than $3,000,000.

MARKET GIVEN BOOST BY OIL SHARES

Westinghouse and Steel Among Shares to Gain In General Advance

NEW YORK, Aug. 13. (AP.) The petroleum issues provided fuel for a moderate advance in the stock market today.

Final adoption of a conservation measure in Texas, to stem the flood of oil from the huge East Texas pool, was greeted by a prompt stiffening of crude prices, and a general upturn in oil shares. The general market turned upward quickly, overcoming an early sag in the rails.

Advances of a point or more were general in the petroleum group, including Standards of New Jersey and California, Socony-Vacuum, Continental, Seaboard, Texas Corporation, Sinclair, Skelley and others. In the rails, Union Pacific rallied 3 points on payment of the regular dividend. Miscellaneous issues up 2 to 4 included United States Steel, Underwood Elliott, Westinghouse, Case, Johns Manville, Sears, Safeway, General Railway Signal, Allied Chemical and others. Gains of a point were widespread.

The advance was helped by a more cheerful feeling over international finance affairs. Wall street did not appear greatly concerned over the revolutionary flare-up in Cuba. It is more interested in the success of the Chadbourne sugar plan, than a possible change in government in Cuba.

The London market rallied rather briskly as speedy three-party action in England to deal with the financial situation was indicated as heads of the liberal and conservative parties sped to London to confer with Premier MacDonald.

Individual shares were considerably influenced by dividend actions and prospects. The regular payment by Union Pacific had been expected in well informed quarters, although considerable uneasiness has developed over railroad dividends generally. Underwood Elliott rallied briskly when the annual dividend rate was cut from $5 to only $4 as a more drastic reduction would not have surprised many observers. General Railway Signal, which has recently had a sharp decline reflecting anxiety over the dividend, rallied rather sharply in response to a statement by the president saying that he would recommend the regular disbursement at the directors' meeting.

Big Year Expected By Heinz Company

"We are expecting the biggest year's business in our history. The unit output of our factories has shown an increase and with the new products which will be introduced in the fall we are very optimistic about the future."

Howard Heinz, president of H. J. Heinz Company, made this statement at the close of a convention of that concern's sales branch managers from all sections of the United States and Canada, which opened on Monday morning and continued until Thursday. The statement by Mr. Heinz was made after he had received reports from the managers.

Armstrong Cork Earnings Higher

LANCASTER, Pa., Aug. 13. (AP)—A gain of approximately 14 per cent in net profits over the same period last year was shown in the semi-annual statement of the Armstrong Cork Company for the first six months of 1931. Net profits for the period were $679,047 as compared with $772,308 in the same period last year. The company reported current assets of $22,430,137.95, including $8,298,776.54 cash. Sales shrank 30.4 per cent from the same period in 1930. The statement showed a surplus above all liabilities of $8,507,139.

Aluminum Cartel Expected to Quit

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—The International Aluminum Cartel is expected to expire with agreements which run out on December 31 this year, according to Department of Commerce advices from Berlin.

One reason given for difficulties confronting the cartel continuance is the expansion of American aluminum interests. Out of 273,490 tons of aluminum produced in 1930, not more than 30 per cent came from European plants.

Exchange Admits Steel Firm's Bonds

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The New York Stock Exchange has admitted to the list $40,000,000 par value National Steel Corporation first collateral mortgage sinking fund gold bonds, 5 per cent series, due 1956. Trading in the bonds starts today.

Adjustment to Changing Wants Difficult Problem, London Economist Says

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.

The prolonged depression has sharpened [illegible] men, and [illegible] ingly [illegible] position [illegible] personal [illegible]

There [illegible] discussion [illegible]

Mr. Rukeyser

[illegible] The analysis [illegible] ms of production of which so many people complain was not the real weakness of the capitalist system. Anarchy was merely a question begging phrase which concealed the fact that wants change from time to time and that exact adjustment of supply to changing wants would be a difficult problem whatever the form of social organization adopted. The real question was whether any other system could combine the same degree of satisfaction of wants with the same rapidity of adjustment to those wants. It might be necessary to choose in the future between stability in the organization of production and freedom of choice on the part of consumers.

[illegible] for [illegible] fort there [illegible] damming [illegible] freedom [illegible] vance has been [illegible] task is [illegible] productive [illegible] tem as [illegible] curd of [illegible] menaced [illegible] business [illegible]

It is becoming increasingly fashionable to predict another winter of dire distress. From a speculative standpoint there before have the adverse aspects of the outlook been so well advertised. Oil Cheaper Than Water in Texas

LONGVIEW, Tex., Aug. 13 (AP).—East Texas crude oil was selling here today for about one-fortieth the price of good drinking water.

The oil brought from 10 to 15 cents a barrel. A barrel of oil contains 42 gallons.

Interest in Centrals Dividend Meeting Unusually High

Though New York Centrals second quarter results were much improved over the first quarter when a deficit of $144,913 was revealed, the six months' results were not eminently satisfactory. Net operating income of $4,517,296 was equivalent to only 90 cents a share on the capital stock, contrasted with $23,112,699, or the equivalent of $4.63 a share, reported for the corresponding period last year. This showing naturally serves to keep interest in the approaching dividend meeting unusually high. The company reduced its dividend rate to $1.50 quarterly at the March meeting from the $2 basis which had been in effect since 1927. In all a total of $3.50 a share was paid in dividends for the first six months, only 90 cents a share of which was earned during the period. In other words the road dipped into its accumulated surplus to the extent of about $13,000,000 to make up the deficiency.

Taking its cue from the action of the stock which had been persistently weak of late, the speculative fraternity has been anticipating a reduction in the General Railway Signal dividend at the meeting of directors slated for August 27. But in a letter sent to shareholders the head of the company, W. W. Salmon, states he will recommend the regular quarterly payment of $1.25 a share be ordered at that time. He stated his belief that "present quotations on your common stock do not reflect adequately its intrinsic value even under current adverse conditions in the securities markets." He admonished holders not to be unduly influenced by rumors or unauthorized statements regarding the company's position and prospects.

Radio, one of the spectacular performers of the last bull market, but which recently seemed to have been relegated to the limbo of discarded speculative favorites, enjoyed an unusual measure of prominence during the day. There seemed to be no lack of bullish conjecture to go with the rise in the stock, some quarters talking of a possible plan for revamping the company's physical and capital structure, whereas others were conjecturing on prospects for an early settlement of patent pooling disputes with the government. The bulk of the buying, however, was credited to an individual operator who won great prominence as a stock market bull through his connection with the stock in the halcyon days of 1928 and 1929 when the big show was in full swing.

Declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of $2.50 a share by Union Pacific directors had a firming effect on the railroad shares as a group. Carrier stocks had been soft early, influenced by the sour showing of New York Central results for the half year. The Union Pacific action was in line with expectation, but it was interesting to note that there had been no trading in the stock prior to the dividend announcement which came mid-way through the second hour. The stock closed yesterday at 141½ and, after the dividend, the market was quoted 142 bid, 145½ offered, with the first actual sale showing a rise of 2 points at 143½.

In viewing the business prospect for the balance of the year, the following industries are regarded as most favorably situated, according to a survey completed by Standard Statistics. Included in this classification are beverages, chain stores, dairy products, package foods, refrigeration, tobacco and utilities.

Stocks of American passenger cars in 36 foreign countries were generally normal as of July 31, according to a Department of Commerce survey. Of the 35 countries, 22 reported normal stocks of low-priced cars, 11 reported normal stocks of medium-priced cars and 10 reported normal stocks of high-priced cars. Low stocks of low-priced cars were shown in six countries, low stocks of medium-priced cars in 15 countries and low stocks of high-priced cars in 13 countries. Stocks of European cars were also reported generally normal.

Reasons for Stocks' Fall This Summer

By B. C. FORBES

THE STOCK MARKET did not behave well during my four months' absence. Twenty-five industrial issues declined from April 11 to August 8 fully 17 per cent.

Twenty-five railroads dropped almost 25 per cent. and a representative group of utilities 21 per cent. Happily the market has done distinctly better so far this week.

B. C. Forbes

A LOT HAS been written about short-selling. Short selling could not possibly have alone caused any such shrinkage in market values. Unquestionably there has been a bit of throwing over of stocks by frightened holders.

WHAT HAS been mainly responsible for such liquidation? The foreign unrest? No. Without doubt the main cause has been the severe drop in corporation profits and the numerous reductions announced in dividends by all classes of corporations by the strongest as well as the weakest.

Furthermore many individuals and families have been obliged to sell part of their capital assets because of insufficient current income to meet their needs. More or less of this kind of selling must be expected during the coming winter.

HOWEVER THE intense dullness and relative stability of quotations during recent weeks indicate that pressure has relaxed; that stocks on the whole are now in the hands of investors who want to retain them.

Down in Wall Street they declared emphatically at the opening of this week that the market was in a very strong technical position, meaning that outside selling had dried up, that there had been investment buying from powerful sources, that there were a rather large number of bear accounts uncovered, and that at least a rally was the logical thing to look for. After remaining quietly firm on Monday, the market rallied spiritedly on Tuesday, though yesterday it didn't do so well.

HOW SEVERE has been the fall in standard and other stocks during the last four months is brought out in the following tables:

THE WRITER would prefer to do more nosing around in financial circles and to delve further into business conditions before venturing an opinion on the market's immediate prospects. That most stocks are ridiculously cheap for long-term investment needs no investigation.

CHAPTER XLII

Strange room—strange man!

What did it mean?

I tried to piece things together. What could I remember before this?

It came to me. I was fagged out. I got worse, dizzy and weak. Chubb Osmund took me to his apartment—or did he? Did he take me somewhere else?

That thought frightened me and I tried to sit up.

The man heard me and turned toward me. Then I saw my sister Cora coming to me.

"Keep quiet, Katie," she said.

I recognized the room then. A spare room in Cora's home. One I had never used, and had merely glanced into.

"Well, of all things, how—"

"Breathe," said Cora, trying to make me lie back in bed.

The man came over to me. I saw that he was a doctor. He took my temperature and turned around.

"The young lady will be all right, if she has a good rest," he said to Cora.

"But I've got to talk. I want to know things," I began.

The doctor smiled.

"A good night and a natural feminine dream," he said, "and you will be in fresh enough condition. I will be in again tonight."

Cora went out with him and I sat up again, but my head felt sort of empty and congested. I found it was easier to remain on my back.

Cora came up right away. I could hear the children playing downstairs.

"How long—"

"I'll tell you, dear. . . . I will save an effort on your part. You just collapsed. That was all—you aren't made of steel, you chilly, you know."

"Oh—it's to be a sermon," I said.

Cora grinned and patted my cheek.

"You'll pull through. You are as sane as ever you were."

Then she explained that in the night she had a telephone call from a man named Osmund that I was sick and he thought she might be know. It seems that Chubb helped me up to my room and got me in, realizing that I was a mighty sick girl. He was going to get a doctor and have me taken to a hospital but he remembered that I had a married sister living at Garden City. He poked around and found a letter from Cora on my dresser and knew by her husband's business stationery. He got the home number from the telephone book down in the hall and called up.

THOMPSON VISITS

Cora said they weren't an hour driving in at that time of night and she wouldn't hear of anything else except taking me home with her.

All the coaxing and lolling that I thought I was dreaming about was that true. The doctor said it was just a general breakdown. Cora admitted that she told him I was forever on the go. He gave a name to the breakdown that was about a page long.

I said I had to get well right away and get back to work, but Cora had talked with Mrs. Myers and told me I'm not to be back for months. That frightened me.

I was really meeting them. I said I wanted to get up soon. I didn't think of that bed for weeks I was out in the big yard playing with Cora's two older children.

"It is time I went back to work," I told them one Saturday at dinner.

"We'll see," Cora said.

"I can't sponge on you. I've got money saved, but it won't last for ever."

"You mean you want to go back and play around with Jazz and the focus is that it?" Cora spoke bitterly.

"No, it doesn't appeal to me. I'm fed up," I confessed.

On Sunday we all went for a ride. Spring was well on its way to summer and everything was green and beautiful. From South Shore we drove across to the North Shore and on the way back late in the afternoon, they drove into the yard of a decidedly pretty place with high hedges, a lawn, flower garden and a strip of late tulips along a most attractive glassed-in sun-porch.

"Some of your Long Island friends?" I asked Cora.

"Oh, yes."

PETER'S HOME

She didn't have to say more. Peter Thompson was coming down the steps from the sun porch, part of a Sunday paper in his hand, slippers on his feet and a cigar in his mouth. He looked so settled and comfortable.

"You look your old self, Katie," was his greeting.

"I'm terrible," I told him.

Me? I'm almost happy," he answered.

Cora invited Peter over to her home for dinner and then turned to me.

"I've seen Peter's home, Katie. Why don't you look it over and let Peter drive you home for dinner?" she suggested.

I was interested in the pretty house and in Peter in a way because I had never properly thanked him for his efforts to help me. So Cora and her family drove on.

Peter took me through the house. He had an old German woman keeping house for him. It was only partly furnished. We sat out on the sun porch and I tried to thank him.

"Come here," he said, from the depths of a big chair.

I went over to him and he pulled me down on his knees.

"Katie, it's time this nonsense stopped. It's time we got married," he said.

NEW PLACE TO PLAY

It was all so restful and Peter looked so clean and manly and so loving. It would be heaven here with him. I put my arms about his neck and kissed him.

"We can't get a license until tomorrow, dear boy," I said.

We were married the next day.

That was a year ago. Another spring is here. The house is beautifully furnished, the garden full of flowers and my heart full of happiness.

I pulled Peter down beside me on the swinging hammock when he came from his office. He is a contracting plumber now with men working for him and I whispered to him:

"I want the big south room fixed up, Peter. I'm going to play around there a great deal."

"Anything you say, Katie, anything you say. I thought the furniture was all right, but if you want to get something never go to it," he promised, giving me a kiss and starting to get up.

I pulled him back beside me. "I want it fixed up swell, Peter, remember. It's where I shall play around an awful lot," I repeated.

"Why, of course, Katie. Just say the word—tell me how you want it fixed up."

Fix it up as a big and beautiful nursery, Peter!"

He swept me into his arms and held me closely. The housekeeper had to call three times before we went in to dinner.

(THE END.)

The Consulate Bombing

Police Incompetence in Such Cases Indicates Desirability of Summoning Outside Detectives

The bombing of the Italian vice consul's home on South Neville street yesterday is but one of many such crimes that have occurred lately. Within the last few weeks the residence of a city editor, theaters, Mickies Knicks, two houses on Mt. Washington, three homes of owners in Coverdale and Blythedale have been blown up. And the criminals are still at large.

The police and the county detectives are either unwilling or unable to capture the culprits. In either case their incompetence is cause for corrective action.

If they lack the detective skill themselves they should summon help from the outside. Why not call in detectives of outstanding ability, men like Faschetti and Petrosino, who did so much in New York some years ago to put the fear of the law into foreign terrorists?

'Science in Action'

Pittsburghers Make an Important Contribution to the Discussion of the Unemployment Problem

We all know in a vague way that machinery has thrown many manual laborers out of work. But the extent to which the displacement of men by machines has been carried is probably fully realized by very few persons. A book on the subject, published yesterday, "Science in Action," by Dr. Edward R. Weidlein, director, and William A. Hamor, assistant director, of the Mellon Institute for Industrial Research, is a revelation.

Here are some of the things told us by these two Pittsburghers:

In loading pig iron two men now do the work for which 128 were formerly required.

One man replaces 42 in operating open hearth furnaces.

The oxy-acetylene torch enables four men to do in about three hours what it formerly took eight men three weeks to do in repair work on locomotives.

A machine now makes 40,000 bricks an hour, whereas previously it took one man eight hours to make 450 bricks.

It is no wonder there is unemployment.

On the other hand, the authors say, labor-saving machinery has lowered production costs, and thus brought higher wages and lower selling prices, which stimulate consumption.

Messrs. Weidlein and Hamor have written a book which provokes thought. It is an important contribution to the discussion of the unemployment problem.

The Upper Allegheny

Its Improvement Will Redound to the Benefit of the Whole Pittsburgh District.

We note with interest the activities of the Upper Allegheny River Improvement Association, an organization headed by S. Y. Ramage, of Oil City, and with an impressive executive committee drawn from nearly every large town in Western Pennsylvania north of Butler.

The association is conducting a survey of the territory from which it draws its membership, studying flood control, navigation possibilities, hydroelectric power, natural resources and industrial resources.

Its reports thus far published justify a high degree of enthusiasm over the opportunities for the development of wealth that lie in the Upper Allegheny valley.

This is, of course, of no less importance to Pittsburgh than to the upper part of the valley. For improvement of the stream cannot fail to benefit the entire Pittsburgh district.

The Ship Sale

Vessels Mean Too Much as Instruments of American Destiny to Pass Out of Our Control.

The United States Shipping Board, in passing upon plans of financial reorganization for the United States lines, which owns the Leviathan and her sister ships, has a large responsibility to keep the fleet in operation UNDER THE AMERICAN FLAG.

No ideas about short term convenience should be allowed to induce the board to consider bids for these ships from any except domestic interests, which are undivided in their Americanism.

With several American groups ready to acquire and operate the ships, there is not the slightest justification for considering offers from interests which operate ships under various flags.

There need be no American inferiority complex about our national fitness to remain on the high seas because of the reorganization.

The depression in shipping is international in character.

The French line called upon its government for far-reaching financial aid.

The German lines, it was reported, were able to pay dividends because of the settlement of war claims by the United States government.

The pressing problems of the United States lines are in fact traceable to lack of financing on account of money market conditions for the purpose of building new ships contracted for in May, 1930.

Lacking new financing, the company tended to deplete itself of working capital to meet these contractual obligations.

Sponsors of the line feel that it has had reasonable success as an operating venture.

From its inception in April, 1929, until December, 1930, the company reported an operating profit in excess of $1,100,000.

In spite of existing difficulties, there has been nothing in the experiment which reflects on the quality of American management in the shipping field.

The ships mean too much as agencies of national defense and instruments of American destiny to allow them to pass directly or indirectly out of 100 per cent American control.

Not only should the fleet be kept afloat under the American flag, but its MANAGEMENT SHOULD BE CENTERED IN AMERICAN OWNED COMPANIES, WHICH ARE NOT ENGAGED DIRECTLY OR THROUGH AFFILIATES IN THE OPERATION OF STEAMERS UNDER FOREIGN FLAGS.

The Shipping Board should have the vision to see beyond the immediate depression to the larger opportunities of American economic life.

It should reorganize the direction of these steamers in a manner that will definitely promote an American merchant marine.

THERE MUST BE NO DEVIATION FROM THIS PRINCIPLE.

It Cannot Come Too Soon

There is no room in this nation for the criminal aliens, as the Wickersham Commission has reported to President Hoover. They must be promptly deported and our laws strengthened to make impossible their return.

The Letter

These are things the letter told:
"Don't worry, I'm all right.
The weather's fine, today quite cold.
Played bridge at Dick's last night.
I've fed the kitten and the pup,
I've taken in the milk
And put away the Dresden cup;
The place is fine as silk.
Don't fret about one thing, my dear,
For everything's o. k.
Of course I'd love to have you here,
But finish out your stay."

And this the letter did not say:
"How can it only be
A week (it seems a year) today
Since you've been gone from me?
The kitten cries, the puppy howls,
The house seems like a tomb,
And the once-friendly milkman scowls
Through an abysmal gloom.
I hope your days go dragging past
So you will miss us, too,
For kitten, pup and I can't last
Much longer without you."

ENGLAND DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

LONDON, Aug. 13.—As Broadway means New York to America so does The Strand mean London to the English. Every hour of the London day in those lowly outposts where the Empire has sent its flag-pegers, Canada, Africa, India and Australia men are dreaming of The Strand. It is the symbol of home.

Like Broadway it has become cheap, small and vaguely disappointing. Yet no street in all London offers such an exciting flair. Even the shop windows betoken romance, bulging as they are with pith helmets, compasses, spine pads, veld shirts, putters and jaunty ammunition belts.

We set out this morning in a thin drizzle to wander along this curiously old and narrow Victorian highway. Gayly patched omnibuses were bobbing with umbrellas. Cockney women were shouting their heather, hawkers held out their matches, toys and sundry gimcracks. Tawdry, yet appealing.

Where lines of traffic converge at Charing Cross a one-armed silhouette cutter sought our patronage by pointing to his placard pasted with illustrious—Lloyd George, the Prince of Wales and Laddie Cliff. I was anxious to see how he executed his art so handicapped.

So we stopped. Placing a sheet of black paper between his teeth he inspected us a few seconds and with sharp manicure-like scissors began to snip away and in no time at all had my wife and me in profile—standing side by side in a typical morning mistral. He charged a six-pence.

In a drug store near what was once the old Hotel Cecil but now an office building a window card proclaimed "Real American Soda." And it was not only real and tasty but the price was fresh—O, very fresh from a chain drug store near the Grand Central.

Naturally we wound up our meal at Simpson's. Like the Cafe de la Paix one is supposed to see everybody at Simpson's at lunch. I saw only Thomas Burke. The charm of the place is in the service. Roasts are trundled up on huge silver topped hotpots and deft carving by John Bulls, come to life is done before your eyes.

I am unable to do a nip-up over British cooking. To me it is heavy, unpalatable and flat. My only satisfying meal here was in the spirit of a lark. "Bucky" Taylor took me to a little tavern seemingly lost in the mews near Knights Bridge. There was a soup of ox tails, a steak and kidney pie, a salad and Yorkshire pudding. The patrons were almost solely butlers, valets, grooms and other servants who came there on nights off. The proprietor, today incidentally runs a two-floored place on Oxford Circus—a place frequented by the Picadilly toffs. Swank.

* * *

London's aristocratic streets now have neat brass signs heralding "American dentists." And I am told they have the biggest and most exclusive practices in the city. British teeth suffer from chemical reaction of the water and the American dentist has been the most successful in coping with it. But we don't suppose they can do much about those British buck teeth.

* * *

After lunch I strolled to Whitehall to glimpse the guards in horsetail hats, idled on Cockspur street watched the pigeons around the Nelson monument in Trafalgar, picked up a Burberry raincoat with a white leather belt (a-la in Haymarket and then set off in a taxi for Houndsditch.

* * *

Houndsditch with its blowzy denizens and array of dank pubs is to me one of the fascinating stretches in London's multiplicity of human habitations. Its name came from the fact it was a burial ground for dogs in Pepys' time. In days of cabbies it was their rendezvous. Today taxi drivers, linemen and private chauffeurs have taken it over and it is a-bustle with Cockney haranguing and blimey bickering. These are types of the Hogarth unlovely etchings whose pleasantries are acrimonious but only a gesture—a bit of chaff.

* * *

In departing all high hatted and spruce for the theater I stopped before a window mirror in the horse shoe court of the Savoy to cop a final peek at my getup. "Ain't he purty?" yelled some one across the driveway. But I took no notice. Undoubtedly one of those "tul-gah Aw-meerikans."

* * *

And after theater I half promised Tommy Watson and a group of Fleet streeters to run down to Epsom tomorrow. That's where the blades sport cream colored high hats, braided coats and shoulders strung with binoculars. Very pip-pip. Quite.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Hard to read the mail these days. All those hundreds of discouraged letters. Weary, resentful humans, struggling, scrimping, wondering what it's all about, when will it end—

Here's one this morning. A brave, intelligent spirit drove that rebellious pen—

"I'm willing to look for the silver lining in any cloud, but is there any silver lining to this one? What's the use of all this suffering and humiliation? Maybe some needed to learn to work and save, but we didn't. For 10 years my husband and I have lived thrifty, industrious lives. We never loafed nor wasted. We were proud and happy and now—this. Everything we saved has gone. We are dressing like beggars, living from hand to mouth. They say there's 'blessing in adversity,' but where is the blessing in this?"

I wonder. I've asked that plenty of times myself. Tramping hot pavements in ragged shoes, looking in through restaurant windows at food I could not buy, until I drooled with nausea—I've asked that same question. Could any blessing come out of my adversity? I didn't believe it. Yet now, looking back—

I keep thinking of that story my friend told me about her night trip along Puget Sound. She had been automobiling, through lazy June days, up and down the country roads of Oregon. Someone told her about a garden. No stopping Cora if she hears about a garden. She had to see it that night. Four hours off? They could make it by 10.

But the weather had taken a nasty twist. Over the horizon a storm was boiling up. The twilight went out in a sudden squall of black rain. The night flung itself upon them like a bat. In 10 minutes the road, which skirted the Sound, was a quaking smear of mud.

Below, there was that vicious lisp and mumble of angry water. Now and then, between a scud of cloud, they'd glimpse a twisting grayness—see a wave upfling—snatching at them. Then the blackness would shut down again. The wind would go on shoving, squatting its dead weight on the running board, plucking at the curtains. A back tire would spin off into nothingness . . . For an instant, there'd be silence, like a great cough — with the night watching and the water waiting far below—

Presently, there wasn't even the glimpse of water. They'd come into something . . . into some immense, hollow darkness . . . as though they'd dropped off the edge of things. Silence—except for a vague, evil confusion, far above them. Off the road, not a trace. Only the sense of Something brooding . . . Something getting ready . . . coming closer . . . The sort of thing that will drive a rabbit wild with idiot fear—

Cora's a game person . . . very quiet in emergencies . . . but the Thing got her. Perhaps she didn't scream. There's a panic beyond screaming . . . only her hands were hanging on when the forest spat them out at last, sent them reeling forward into the open wind and rain.

It was midnight before they found a farm and a sleepy, frightened woman let them in through a grudging door. Garden? They'd forgotten there were such things as gardens . . . forgotten everything but that snatching terror at their heels.

Six hours sleep and they turned back, through a morning carelessly bright as a daisy wreath. Green grass tangled in a web of silver light. Puddles, clear as bits of broken glass, cupping blueness in their black earth frame. Around the bend, the tall, cool vault of forest filled with peace. And then, ahead—

Beyond the great, dark arch . . . swaying in the sunshine . . . mile upon mile of white foxgloves . . . tall, pale spires of blossom ringed with yellow butterflies—with the Sound spreading its quiet heliotrope between the jade green stems.

So THAT was what they had passed in the night! That was what lay within the sheath of darkness!

Adversity—the long, black, idiot night of adversity—is there any profit in it? I didn't think so when I went through it. But now and then of a sunny morning, when for a while I come out of its gloom, I wonder. Was there something lovely, hidden in the darkness? Was it there I found a little courage . . . a little tolerance . . . a little patience with another's pain?

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. MUNDY

You know that you are not in as good physical condition as you should be, but you fear to go to a physician and get his verdict.

Many years ago you began to have symptoms fast becoming worse of late.

And yet you hesitate to take advantage of scientific help.

Perhaps it is because you cannot spare the money.

You would rather have other members of the family enjoy certain benefits which would be lessened if you put yourself in a doctor's care.

Then you fear an operation might be suggested.

You have a morbid fear of hospitals and surgeons.

Yet you are less and less able to do what is expected of you.

All these dreads chase in and out of your mind and you want to keep yourself in ignorance of a full conception of your condition.

Do you know that this nervous horror of what a doctor may tell you might be responsible for the major part of your troubles?

Inflamed nerves in different parts of the body are serious.

They may cause your system to be slowly poisoned as time goes on, when you might stop it now.

Go to a reliable physician and after consultation with one in whom you have confidence you may find he has a simple remedy that will cure you.

The 'Right' to a Second Term

By Claude G. Bowers

Despite his uniform failure in dealing with major domestic problems, it is conceded that nothing can prevent the renomination of Mr. Hoover. This is due to the tradition which has grown up in recent years that every President is all but entitled to a renomination for a second term. We have almost come to persuade ourselves that there is something of disrepute in the record of a President who does not have a second term. And yet Washington expressed a desire to retire at the end of his first term, and men like Jefferson and Hamilton, representing the two schools of political thought, dissuaded him. John Adams was unfortunate in his administration and had no chance for a second term. The next three Presidents were very popular. Jefferson, Madison and Monroe—and had second terms. They were among the "great Presidents." John Quincy Adams, like his father, was pursued by misfortunes, and he was refused more than one term. Then came Andrew Jackson enormously popular, and deservedly so, and he had his second term.

And then there were no more second terms for anyone until Abraham Lincoln.

Polk's Brilliant Record Of Successes

Van Buren earned a second term, but because conditions in the country were bad, though not really so bad as now, he was defeated. Harrison and Taylor died during their first terms. And neither Tyler, Polk, Fillmore, Pierce or Buchanan seriously sought another term, though Tyler and Fillmore would have liked another. The three men who did not even seek a second term were not the small men partisan history has made them. Polk was a remarkably successful President, making a brilliant record of successes in four short years and killing himself in the process.

At the beginning of his administration he set himself a task which seemed Herculean and impossible of achievement.

He would settle the northeastern boundary dispute long hanging fire.

He would settle the Oregon question, on which others had failed.

He would revise the tariff downward.

He would reform the currency.

He would acquire California and that vast territory.

And he succeeded. Yet he did not even want a second term.

Hoover Is Certain of A Renomination

Then came Lincoln, who deserved a second term, and Grant who got one without deserving it, and then years went by before we had another two-term President. Hayes did not ask one and could not have gotten it. Garfield died and Arthur was not even considered for another term, and then came Cleveland, a strong executive, who deserved re-election but failed and was later given a second term. From Grant to McKinley there was no President who remained for eight consecutive years in office.

Then the two-term idea, as a matter of right, asserted itself. McKinley got two terms and Roosevelt two, but Taft, though getting the renomination was defeated. Wilson had two terms, and Coolidge and now Hoover is certain of a renomination.

* * *

Taft-Roosevelt Fight In 1912 Convention

It is easier for a Republican than for a Democratic President to force a renomination because of the character of the Southern delegations in Republican conventions. A goodly portion of the Southern Republicans of any consequence are in office—agents of the President. The Negro delegates have been trained since the days of Reconstruction to the belief that it is natural to sell their votes. A Republican President can almost positively count on a solid Southern vote regardless of the issues or of the candidates. When the Taft-Roosevelt fight occurred in the convention of 1912 George Perkins sought to break through the Southern tradition and money was used by both sides in the South. But Perkins was to find that buying these men did not mean they would stay bought.

Aside from this advantage to the man in office is the tradition of a generation or two that a President is actually entitled to a second nomination, regardless of the success or failure of his Administration.

* * *

Is the Two-Term Idea The Best for People?

Is the two-term idea the best for the people?

Jefferson was opposed to the Constitutional provision that a President could succeed himself because of his fear that it might mean the indefinite continuation of a man in office through the pressure he could exert by presidential power. He became reconciled to the provision when Washington created a precedent by refusing a third term. Now we are hearing more and more about third terms for Presidents. The Washington tradition is not so sacred now.

But even a second term in prospect can and does operate to the public's disadvantage in the case of most Presidents. Instead of concentrating courageously on the problems of the hour, they are running for their second term all through their first—unless extraordinary men. Thus they sidestep important problems that are controversial. Thus they think in terms of politics and not statesmanship. Thus their courage must pay tribute to cunning.

* * *

A 6-Year Term With No Re-elections

And thus many thoughtful people conclude that one term of six years in length with no re-election would mean stronger, more courageous, and constructive executives, as a rule. It would remove the temptation to play personal politics and would give sufficient time for a President to work out his policies. He would be less the leader of a party and more the leader of the people. He would not be afraid of his shadow.

Perhaps we may come to the six-year-term idea, and so actually increase the dignity of the Presidency by removing the temptation, if not necessity, of pulling personal political wires for another nomination.

Without the foolish tradition that a President in office is entitled to a renomination, regardless of the character of his administration, Mr. Hoover would hardly be renominated. The Republicans would infinitely prefer Dwight Morrow or Calvin Coolidge. Unless some miracle is wrought soon, they realize that the record of the administration is not one to appeal to the people and they want to win. But there stands the foolish tradition and they fold their hands and wait. It was true, to a less degree, in the case of Mr. Taft, who, though a great jurist, had a genius for blundering in politics. The majority of the party would have preferred Roosevelt—as was shown in the primaries. But because of the tradition without rhyme or reason, it was agreed that to refuse a second nomination would be to insult Mr. Taft.

So it will be with Mr. Hoover. Even though his party would rejoice over an announcement that he would not seek another nomination, he will be renominated. It seems incredible—and would be, but for the myth.

TURTLE CREEK, WILMERDING TO EXPAND

Final Action Due on Move Affecting 200 Residents And Involving 140 Acres

Two East Boroughs, according to present indications, will annex 140 acres of Patton Township within the next few weeks. Approximately 200 persons living in the township will be affected by the move, which has been brought about by petition of property owners.

Turtle Creek already has passed first and second reading of an ordinance providing for the annexation of approximately 100 acres of the township land. Final decision will not be made before next month.

ORDINANCE DRAFTED

An annexation ordinance is now being prepared, according to Verner L. Barbor, Wilmerding borough solicitor, and probably will be presented at the next council meeting, August 18.

One possibility of delay presents itself according to interested groups. A number of property owners are not in favor of annexation of the new land to Wilmerding until assurance has been given that Middle avenue will be improved.

TAXATION RATES

The part of Patton Township proposed to be annexed to Wilmerding borders on Patton street. This territory is partly residential and agricultural. Wilmerding Borough taxes are 13 mills on property and 17 mills school tax.

In order to extend its service the Goodwill Industries will build a new home in place of the old one that has served as a shop for 19 years. The institution was started 21 years ago in a small church at Twenty-fifth and Smallman streets by the Rev. A. Vincent. Two years later it moved to the present location at Twenty-eighth street and Liberty avenue.

The next year R. L. Boyd succeeded Dr. Vincent as director. He served for five years and was replaced by the present director, the Rev. Albert G. Curry. Up to this time the industries confined its activities to settlement work, but under Dr. Curry's leadership it began to give daily work to the needy.

Employment could be given to only 105 workers daily in the old structure. The new building will enable the organization to give work to 210 persons daily.

Midnight-Blooming Plant And Gigantic Hollyhock East Borough Pride

Flowers that blossom at midnight and a hollyhock that has a way of growing above garage roofs—these are some of the tricks Mother Nature has brought to light this week in the East Boroughs.

Nine years ago L. Esch, of 1617 Maplewood avenue, Wilkinsburg, planted a Cereus plant leaf in his yard. Legend has it that the plant comes to full bloom only once a year, at midnight. Esch waited patiently and last Saturday saw the flower open in the middle of one of the cactus-like leaves of the plant.

According to Esch all branches and blossoms of the Cereus grow from leaves. As soon as a flower blooms the leaf begins to die and a branch takes its place.

Mrs. Clara Holgerson, of Fairfield avenue, Homestead Park, is the envy of many of her friends and neighbors because she has a hollyhock that stands 12 feet and towers above the garage at her home. She can't account for it, because all the other hollyhocks she planted at the same time have grown only to normal size.

Bridge Vanishes, Trafford Puzzled by Mystery

Mystery surrounds the disappearance of the 75-foot pedestrian bridge over Brush Creek, connecting Trafford Borough proper with the new Trafford-Larimer road. Council says the telephone company removed the bridge. The telephone company says it knows nothing about the bridge's removal.

It all came about when 150 residents of the borough complained to Council last week that they were forced to walk a mile and a half to the nearest bridge and petitioned the borough to rebuild the structure.

The bridge was recently removed following a letter from Council to the telephone company, owners, requesting the bridge be moved to permit Trafford firemen to pump water from the creek.

But the telephone company took no action, according to J. A. Kraune, district plant superintendent, who said that the letter from Council asked the company if it had any use for the bridge.

Kraune said:

"We did not take down the bridge and do not know who did. We therefore can take no steps to rebuild it."

PATTON WATER CASE LISTED FOR FALL

Question of Payment for Monroeville System to Be Decided After September

Whether property owners of Patton Township will pay for the installation of a new water system in Monroeville, funds for which were voted at the election in November, will be decided in Common Pleas Court after September. Court action is pending between the residents of Monroeville and the rest of the township.

Monroeville residents believe that community should be served by the system of the Pennsylvania Water Company. The move for the new system was started, it is said, by the Monroeville Volunteer Fire Department.

A bond issue to cover the cost of preliminary work of laying the water mains was approved at the November elections by a margin of 81 votes.

EAST END CARDINALS NEAR STEEL CITY LEAGUE TITLE

CLUB MAY WIN BOTH HALVES OF RACE

Poor Showing of St. Elizabeth Nine Only Disappointment In Local Sandlot Circuit

Sandlot fans in the East End are having a real race in the Steel City League. This loop is composed of practically all the light first-class teams in that section of the city.

The first half found the East End Cardinals, led by Bill Ryan of Homewood winning after a hectic struggle with the St. Elizabeth team of Lawrenceville.

Now the second half finds the Cardinals pulling away into an undisputed leadership. Manager Ryan has been getting wonderful pitching from Ollie Hussey and Bob Paisley while Gorman is classed as the best shortstop in the loop.

OAKLANDER DEFEATED

For a time the Pasquale club of Oakland was considered the outfit to stop the Cardinals, but behind the steady pitching of Hussey the Oaklanders went down to defeat last Sunday.

Manager Ryan started to look for another catcher last week. Tom Birks, Jr., who has caught for the Cardinals for three years, has joined the Reliance Life club in the West Penn and Commercial and Industrial loops, and that makes him ineligible for the Cardinals.

PENN CLUB PROMISING

It was thought that the Penn Club of Wilkinsburg would give the Cards a hard fight. The Holy City club has lined up some of the most promising material around the district and this team playing from Frick Park will be heard from next season.

The big disappointment in the second-half was the poor showing of the St. Elizabeth nine. The Lawrenceville club under the leadership of Manager Danko had a brilliant aggregation in the first half, and forced the Cards into a playoff. However internal troubles got the club into plenty of difficulty and practically all of the players that carried the club the first-half have quit.

WESTINGHOUSE VETS HONORED

Two veteran employes of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, with a total of 75 years of service, were recently honored at a meeting in the Trafford foundry pattern shop of the company.

E. J. Hepp, with the company since 1890, was congratulated upon his retirement from active service, and L. Herzog, who started work in the pattern shop of which Hepp was superintendent, in 1897, was congratulated as successor to his former superior, as manufacturing engineer on designs for patterns.

EIGHT IN RACE FOR TITLE IN WEST PENN

Linwood Club Holding Lead, But Pressed by Others; Homestead Slow Starting

The best sandlot race in the district is what the fans are saying of the West Penn League, and from the looks of things, the fans certainly know what they are talking about.

At the present time any of the eight clubs in the second half can win. Linwood playing from Hartman Park out Paulson avenue way are leading the parade, and if Manager Hugo Pasquelli works his pitchers during the next three weeks with the same results, Linwood will be in.

The Marty Griffin Club of the Hill District should make a great showing. Manager Gerry Americus has the best pitching staff in the loop and plenty of hitting strength.

RELIANCE IN RUNNING

Zigliotti the Griffin ace is without a doubt the best twirler in the circuit but he has a habit of wandering around the district pitching for other clubs. Bailey and King can take their regular turns on the mound to give Gerry real pitching.

However, there is a belief that Reliance Life is far from being out of the race. George Miller and his gang have not been hitting and while Capt. Dutch Spencer and Bill Gormley have been twirling fairly good baseball the players must get runs.

HEYL GOING STRONG

Soapy Heyl is the only player keeping the Insurance team in the race. Heyl is clouting the ball out of the lot, and when Heyl is not hitting the Lifers are in a bad way. At the beginning of the season the club was hitting the ball hard, and maybe this will return.

Fertig and his Homestead Aces as first-half champions have been slow starting in the second half and have dropped three games but all of the clubs are getting beaten with competition so keen.

The Aces are great finishers, and will cause plenty of trouble for the team that wins the second-half title.

McKeesport Woman Sues for $20,000

Henrietta A. Dolquist, of McKeesport, is seeking $20,000 damages from the West Penn Railways Company. She has filed suit in Common Pleas Court, alleging that a street car from which she was alighting August 7, last, at Butler avenue and Jenny Lind street, McKeesport, was started suddenly, throwing her to the floor and resulting in serious injury.

'FIRED' OFFICER REHIRED

Patrolman Daniel Muir will be back at his post on the Turtle Creek Police Department after another week, following his suspension and re-election by the Borough Council last week.

Muir, upon motion of W. H. Miller, chairman of Council's police committee, was suspended for two weeks for "conduct unbecoming an officer." It was then learned that the Burgess is responsible for the conduct of the police. So Council voted to fire Muir in order to suspend him.

In order to keep him on the force, the councilmen then proceeded to re-elect Muir to the police force.

TOWNSHIP TAX MEETING SET FOR AUG. 26

Some Wilkins Properties Assessed at 60 Per Cent, Others at 20, Protests Say

The fifth meeting in a tax protest movement among property owners in Wilkins Township is scheduled to be held August 26 at the Fire Hall, Brown avenue.

It was declared by protestants at a meeting last week in the Gary School, Church Hill road, that some township property is assessed at approximately 60 per cent of its value, while other property is taxed to only about 20 per cent of its value.

Attorney William N. McNair, who favors the single tax, was the principal speaker at the meeting. When he finished his talk Assessor P. J. Fallon entered the room and claimed that the system of assessing in vogue in the township was the only one that would keep residents in the district.

Wilson in Race For Phila. Mayor

PHILADELPHIA —(INS.)— Former Deputy Controller S. Davis Wilson will seek the mayoralty nomination on the Democratic ticket and declares he will run on organization planks in the primaries if organ music, not vote, is not wanted. Wilson, a Republican candidate for mayor in 1927, criticized the organization of politics in industry, and asserted the salvation would culminate from the election of himself as the former chief executive.

Five thousand pipes, ranging from the smallest, which resembles a boy's home-made whistle to the largest, which would hold 10 adult persons, will reverberate with music when the new $70,000 pipe organ at Sacred Heart Church, 62d and Liberty streets, is dedicated in October.

When completed the organ will be one of the largest in the country. Engel Bowman, organist, has been working with the engineers in tuning and voicing the mammoth instrument.

A 25-horsepower electric motor will provide the power to operate the organ, which literally is six organs in one, the swell, choir, Centroller Wm. B. Harley is not only an organ, pedal and the great a Republican candidate, Wilson criticized the organization of politics in industry, and asserted the salvation would culminate from the election of himself as the former chief executive.

Members of the parish have subscribed for the instrument by pledging $25 for each pipe installed, and $50 for each of the 75 stops.

HANDS USED AS OARS, 3 SAVED

CHICAGO — Unable to find oars for their leaky rowboat, three modest heroes paddled their ramshackle craft with their hands through the rough waters of the lake to rescue a girl and two young men whose motorboat had capsized half a mile off Sixteenth street.

Two trips were required to bring the rescued ashore. And on the second trip, when their weight was about to sink the rowboat, the rescuers plunged overboard and swam to give the half-drowned man a chance for life.

A Coast Guard crew arrived in time to tow the rowboat in. The rescuers, laborers working on the world's fair projects along the shore, departed without disclosing their names.

ARTIST PAINTS TINY PRINCESS

And, he added, she was very much like the ordinary little girl in a photo studio—she couldn't sit still.

"But who ever knew the child who did sit still?" Ramsay asked. "While I was painting her I gave her a little desk and she made her own drawings of animals in a little book, which she completely filled up."

The artist said his royal subject was interested in her portrait up to a certain point, but her favorite remark was:

"Are we nearly finished, Mr. Ramsay?"

The princess, he said, was proud of her drawings and interrupted him occasionally so he also could admire her work.

'DEAR COMPANION'

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

There are some beautified marriages in the world refreshed again and again with new zests, at the end of which both Darby and Joan, starting out as Jack and Jill, write, "We have been very happy," signed "Dear Companions."

When this is so, it means that Jack or Jill or both Jack and Jill have had to be patient in the early days that follow rapture. You remember Adam and Eve had to leave the enchanted ground called Paradise. And go out into the world and work. So Jack and Jill inevitably must submit to being led by the hand by Reality out of the present-day Arcadia—and believe you me, Arcadia is here in 1931 just as it was in the year 1. After the white-clover-field of the honeymoon is harvested. Then comes the patience.

After the patience with newly discovered crotchets in both Jack's and Jill's individual machinery to ponder on comes the ingenuity. INGENUITY. One or the other must have it—and it's grand if they both have. Marriage can be successful and even joyful when Jack is short on the will to make things Without-Care, even when they are full of it. But I feel that it CAN'T gain any of the felicity we expect, if it is JILL that is short on deliberate, resourceful planning to achieve sparkle and content if you can put the two words up against one another in their long companionship.

Maybe the 1931 flavor and perfume of Arcady, the gold that is left in the bottom of the assay pot when the fume and the ecstasy has died down, is harder to have and hold than it was in what we call "other days." We cannot know about that, in spite of the treasure of reading there is to tell us of "the times and ways of such-and-such a time." Perhaps Jack and Jill of 1700 found the same knots in their white wedding-ribbons when they came to fold them away, as we do now.

Patience, ingenuity, real admiration and real love for one another below and beyond the fascination and early rapture, plain sense, kindness and the impulse to spare, and a few reservations! If she does not much like Jack's Auntie or Mamma, canny Jill will never just SAY SO, no matter if Jack may suspect her. Words unspoken are like ghost-foot falls, they make no real imprint that will not erase.

How easy to say, "Have and be all of these things and you will remain DEAR COMPANIONS." And how hard to do, if Jack or Jill just is an old means and will not do their share.

Is it due to these things, Patience, Ingenuity, Kindness, Restraint, that Jack and Jill grow into Dear Companions, and stay that way? Or is it just that this particular two were just meant for one another, that they fulfil one another's desires, make cheer together not knowing why, are happily come together out of all the world of men and women like two stars meeting and merging and glad to shine together, and therefore they find it EASY to be Patient, Ingenious, Kind, Restrained?

I know that to be all of a Jill to your Jack—companion, friend, lover, playmate, kindred spirit—is an overpowering contemplation if you do not love and admire him! Capitals for the ADMIRE.

Is it the same or Jack? Women really are in the dark about that—no matter how much they pretend to know. —NELL BRINKLEY.

SCHOOL BOARD TO ASK FOR NEW BIDS

The new school is to be completed within the next year and will relieve overcrowded conditions in the Park district. It will be built in Woodland avenue.
